GERMANS PRESS GRIMLY ON AS BOMBERS SET PARIS IN FLAMES

Italian Soldiers Reported In Battle Since Dawn

Duce Hurries War Plan; King Goes to Front

Military Headquarters Removed From Rome to Make it Open City; Death Sentence Ordered for Crimes; Ciano Becomes Soldier

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—Reports that Italy has launched aerial attacks against Malta and Gibraltar were received in London today. There was no official confirmation. The reports said that British and Italian warships were exchanging salvos off the Spanish Mediterranean coast.

(By United Press)

ROME—Italy speeded wartime measures today as authoritative quarters said that since dawn Italian troops had been in battle at unspecified points and Premier Benito Mussolini, under orders from King Victor Emmanuel, took supreme command of land, sea and air forces.

Where Italian troops had gone into action remained a military secret but a communique was promised for later today, an authoritative source said.

Military headquarters were moved from Rome as part of an effort to keep the capital an open city and free from aerial bombardment.

The council of ministers under the presidency of Mussolini adopted legislation for control or confiscation of commercial and industrial firms owned or operated by subjects of enemy states.

The cabinet extended death sentences for certain crimes, such as murder, robbery by violence, kidnaping for ransom and rape. It created a special department to deal with food supplies and increased surtaxes from 80 to 100 per cent.

Authoritative quarters regarded President Roosevelt's speech of last night as the gravest criticism ever directed at Italy by the head of a state not at war with Italy but newspapers carried merely a line saying that in a speech Mr. Roosevelt had referred to Italy's entry into the war.

As commander in chief Mussolini issues his first order of the day in which he confirmed the posts of air, land and sea commanders and said that "from today our arms and hearts must be directed toward one goal, victory."

Count Ciano, who headed an air squadron during Italy's conquest of Ethiopia, became a soldier again today with the rank of major general in the air force.

Meanwhile military secrecy momentarily kept from the public details as to where Italian armed forces had made their first moves.

Authoritative sources said that the initiative was taken by the Italians, who attacked shortly before dawn. Italy's declaration of war against Britain and France had become effective at midnight.

President Invokes Neutrality Act Against Italy; Says U. S. Future at Stake.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Invoking the neutrality act against Italy, President Roosevelt held out to the embattled Allies today an unqualified pledge of material and moral support from the United States.

A series of presidential proclamations last night which named Italy as a belligerent subject to "cash and carry" neutrality restrictions provided the official postscript to a strongly-worded pronouncement of foreign affairs

ANXIOUS: Britain Waits Word Of First Attack by Italians

(By International News Service)

LONDON—Grimly aware that the next few days will provide a severe test of the Allies, Great Britain today awaited word of the first Italian attacks and the latest news of the German drive against Paris.

Everywhere there was an atmosphere of tense expectancy. There was no attempt anywhere to minimize the gravity of the situation.

But despite Italy's declaration of war, determination was expressed on every hand to carry on to the end and carry out the promise of Prime Minister Winston Churchill that Britons will fight in the streets and fields to protect their country if necessity calls.

Premier Mussolini was the target of an unprecedented press barrage. Newspapers eagerly seized President Roosevelt's phrase that Italy's war declaration was a stab in the back for use in editorials and headlines. Il Duce was reviled as a "jackal, traitor and assassin."

British military circles meanwhile reiterated their contention that Germany is throwing everything she has into the battle for Paris "because she knows she must win it to win the war."

These sources said that the French fighting spirit and vigor were beyond all praise.

"We are doing everything we can to help," these spokesmen said

"In the next three or four days, the main force of this German attack must be spent.

"While the French are tired too, it must be remembered that exhaustion of the attacker is always

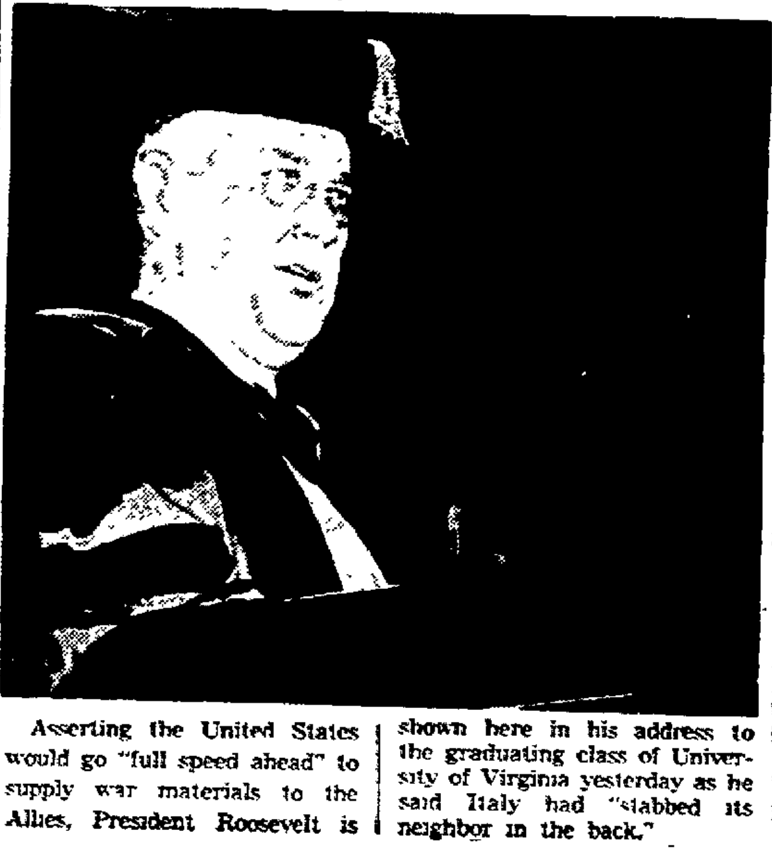
'Stabbed Neighbor in the Back'



Asserting the United States would go "full speed ahead" to supply war materials to the Allies, President Roosevelt is shown here in his address to the graduating class of University of Virginia yesterday as he said Italy had "stabbed its neighbor in the back."

U. S. Liner Washington Halted by Submarine

Ordered to Lower Life Boats, Abandon Ship; Dramatic Signal Exchange Saves Refugee Ship

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The U. S. liner Washington was stopped early today by a submarine of unknown nationality off the coast of Portugal and ordered to lower life boats and abandon ship, but was finally allowed to proceed without molestation.

The state department, which was informed of the event by the U. S. Lines, said that some of the life boats were actually being lowered before the submarine commander was convinced of the truthfulness of the messages from the Washington's captain that the vessel was an American ship.

The vessel was stopped at about 5 a. m. today after it had left Lisbon and was proceeding northwestward to Galway, Ireland, to pick up more refugees. The ship was halted at a point 12 degrees 50 minutes west and 42 degrees 12 minutes north.

According to the report received by the state department the following dramatic exchange of messages took place by blinker signal

WOMAN KILLED IN CAR CRASH

Akronite Meets Death In Early Morning Collision South Of Johnsville on 42.

An Akron woman was killed and her bank executive husband seriously injured early today when the automobile in which they were enroute to Oxford collided with another machine on U. S route 42 just south of Johnsville, Morrow county, and rolled down a 30-foot enbankment.

Dead is Mrs. Martha M. Brillhart, who died almost instantly when pinned beneath the wreckage.

Her husband, Clifford H. Brillhart, 47, secretary of the Dime Savings bank at Akron, is in the General hospital in serious condition.

Physicians, who described his condition as "just fair," said he suffered head injuries and a fractured leg and wrist.

Occupants of the other car, three Cleveland youths enroute home from Ohio State university, escaped injury.

They are Herbert Woolf, 20, driver of the car and Sam Finger, both of Shaker Heights, and an unidentified youth.

The accident, the cause of which was undetermined, occurred shortly after 6 p. m. almost in front of the Vinton Merwine farm on a level stretch of road.

State highway patrolmen who investigated said both Mr. and Mrs. Brillhart were thrown from the car when it left the highway, pinning Mrs. Brillhart under the car as it rolled over on its top.

Tanks Nearing French Capital Outer Defense

Black Pall of Smoke Hangs Over City; Military Governorship Invoked; Preparations Made for Last Ditch Stand in Streets

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(AP)—The German army has reached the vicinity of the Marne, informed sources said today.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(UP)—Paris may be destroyed entirely because of French determination never to yield the city intact to Adolf Hitler, an official French spokesman said today.

By GLENN STADLER
(UP Staff Correspondent)

PARIS—Under a black pall of smoke almost as dense as last night's blackout, military authorities took over Paris for defense against German attack today as reports circulated that German tanks had approached the city's outskirts.

German planes were heard flying over the city throughout the night when the city was shrouded in the blackest blackout of the war.

This morning the military governorship took over the city. The day broke with a haze covering the city.

(In London, the French embassy said that the suburbs of Paris, especially on the south, were heavily bombed last night and that there was a great cloud of smoke over all the suburban districts. So far as is known, the embassy said, the main part of the city was not bombed. Other reports from London indicated fires were burning in the suburbs of Paris and said smoke was thick over the whole city.)

All highways leading to the city were barricaded. Preparations were being made to defend the capital street-by-street and block-by-block against German attack.

Through the night cannonading had been heard at intervals. Anti-aircraft guns fired against the German planes.

The great exodus of civilians went on through the night and today. On all the main highways leading from the city today there were long lines of pedestrians plodding through the haze.

The flight increased its momentum as reports circulated of the swift advance of the Germans. Reports were current that German tank elements were approaching the outskirts.

Reports from the French government, now at Tours, said German armies, bolstered by still more fresh troops, were smashing against Allied defense lines toward Paris today

CRUSHING: Hitler Plan Hinges On Collapse of French Forces

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Writer)

Some way I have a feeling that Italy's entrance into the war isn't the straw that's going to break the camel's back.

Please don't misunderstand me. I'm not underestimating the undoubted increase in the danger to the Anglo-French Allies, whose peril already is great.

Still, it has yet to be demonstrated that Mussolini can throw his weight to such advantage that will crush the already overburdened French armies.

That is Hitler's sole business in life at the moment—to crush France. The success or failure of his plans for overthrowing the British empire are premised on the collapse of the French. Hitler's business must be Mussolini's business from now on.

Hence, Berlin's jubilation over the Duce's action in rushing in for the kill at a moment when the epic resistance of the poilu is causing the Germans a terrific loss of life and irreplaceable supplies. We shouldn't forget that neither Germany nor Italy can stand a long

News-Journal Page For Women

Humiliated By Husband's Request

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"In the four months of my marriage, I have often realized the wisdom of my old nurse, a remarkable Negro philosopher. She used to say, 'Honey, marriage is one thing, co'ting is another.'

"From this you will realize that I come from below the Mason and Dixon line, where we're still foolish enough to believe in chivalry and that a woman should look up to her husband and be protected.

"Naturally, I was amazed when my husband, after two months of marriage, suggested that I take a position in an office so that we could complete the payments on a home we are buying. He said, as we had no immediate prospect of any children, he thought it would be a good thing, the honeymoon being over, if I took a job.

"I suppose I was silly, but this suggestion almost broke my heart. I had expected to remain in our own home always and while the little three-room apartment we have gave me a good deal of leisure, I never imagined that my husband would suggest my going out to work.

"I really am ashamed to write to the folks at home and tell them that I have taken this job. What do you think I should do? Pride keeps me from going back home, and yet the idea of going to work in an office as a file clerk hurts more than I can express.

REGRETFUL."

I'm not going to answer your letter, my dear, by telling you of the millions of married women who now work. I understand perfectly your reaction about taking that job. You see, I know the South, and a good many girls of your background would feel as you do about helping to bring home the bacon.

But please let me remind you that in these days of grim economic struggle many young married women do take jobs until the stork favors them with a visit.

As you say, your little three-room apartment gives you a good deal of leisure. Why shouldn't that leisure be turned to profit? If you spend your spare time playing bridge, going to the movies, window shopping, with an occasional cocktail party as a red-letter day, it's likely you would soon grow discontented and look for crumpled rose-leaves.

Many women who lead that sort of life write me letters full of discontent, without ever stopping to think that the reason they're unhappy is because time hangs too heavily on their hands. You would certainly enjoy that little home more if your industry helped to pay for it. And, of course, your husband would establish joint ownership in recognition of what you've done.

It has become almost a platitude that the most difficult time of married life is during those first years of adjustment. Women for some unaccountable reason expect the honeymoon to continue forever. A job is really a fine way to get over this ultra-romantic period and realize how fine is the comradeship—the foundation stone of marriage — that comes after those first trying years. If you went back home, you'd find your position much more humiliating than if you stayed, took the job for at least a year or two, and helped pay for the new home. This is my candid opinion.

TRENCHING AGAINST TRESPASSING ROOTS

Sometimes, due to limited amount of space, or for protection from winds, the rose bed is placed parallel with a hedge. Then, as the rose bed is fertilized, the hungry roots of the hedge invade the rose bed and consume food and moisture intended for the roses.

A method of checking such trespassing roots is shown in the accompanying illustration. This entails digging a trench between the hedge and the rose bed deep enough to sever the wandering roots of the hedge. The trench can be re-filled immediately after it has been dug and the severing of the transpassing roots ascertained. It will be necessary to dig such a trench at least once a year.

WIENER ROAST PLANNED

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"You have no right to say that!" I said hotly. "I gave you no cooperation in your plan. I worked against you every second!"

Lillian who sat next to me, was tugging at my skirt and muttering, "Sit down, you anointed idiot!" But into Philip Veritzen's eyes came an impish, dancing light, and I realized that he was reveling in having goaded me into my resentful outburst.

Played Into His Hands

"Won't you please resume your seat, Mrs. Graham?" he asked with elaborate courtesy. "I shall have to contradict you, and the task will be easier if you are seated."

I had no intention of obeying him, but Lillian's tug at my skirt was imperative, and on the other side of me, I felt Dicky's impelling clutch at my elbow. I sat down, furious at my husband and my best friend, as well as at the man heckling me so successfully, but realizing that it was useless for me to voice any further protest until Mr. Veritzen should finish the revelation which he was making with such manifest gusto.

"You fancied you were working against me," he said, with smiling, irritating condescension. "But in realty you were playing right into my hands."

Hs eyes left mine and swept the row of faces before him, coming to rest at last upon Olga's, watching him intently.

"As Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Underwood always work together," he said slowly, "and as the three husbands in this room are fortunate enough to have the complete confidence of their wives, I am sure that the announcement of the grueling test to which I submitted my son's young wife, in her own interest, will be no novelty to anyone save my future wife and her daughter."

"To make things clear," he went on, evidently measuring his words now, "I must tell you that Mrs. Graham, in her very young girlhood, had the advantage of dramatic training from one of the greatest actresses of her day, a friend of Mrs. Graham's mother. She wished to launch Mrs. Graham upon a stage career, but because of the mother's objections, nothing was done. Some time ago, when Mrs. Graham first read her play to me, I was struck with her talent, and offered her a place in my organization, promising her a brilliant career if she went into training. But—for family reasons, she declined my offer." —were Dicky's ears red? I wondered,—"and devoted herself to the writing of plays instead of acting in them But I never forgot her reading of her own play, knew at once, that her rendition of the leading woman's role especially was a rarely beautiful and spirited thing."

I felt my cheeks flushing under this fulsome praise, and kept my eyes on the floor, for all the world, I told myself angrily, like a bashful school girl. But I was also caught in a whirlpool of bewilderment. To what astounding revelation was all this rigmarole pointing? I asked myself impatiently.

"Because of this knowledge," Philip Veritzen went on, "I dared to test my daughter-in-law's—obedience—and endurance—with a test I never have used before. Most carefully I drilled her in her lines and gestures so that they were technically perfect, but so lifeless that if she had given that rendition on any stage her career would have ended before it began.

"There were two courses open to her—if Mrs. Graham had not been with her. She could have obeyed me, or she could secretly have substituted her own idea of the role, which, although admirable, I am sure, she is not yet experienced enough to give.

"But I knew of what Mrs. Graham is capable when her sense of injustice and her sympathies are aroused. I was sure that while counseling my son's wife to give me outward obdience, she was secretly drilling Mary in her own version of the role, in tending to contrast it with mine at this rehearsal, counting upon my artistic conscience to confirm my son's wife in the role which Mrs. Graham through some fantastic, but, I will admit, partially justified, reasoning believed I meant to take from her."

WED AT CHURCH

CRESTLINE—The First Methodist church was the scene of a pretty wedding Sunday at 2:30 p. m. when Miss Helen Mae Libens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Libens of South Thoman street became the bride of Raymond H. Sloan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sloan of Ashland.

Rev. Charles F. King read the single ring service which was witnessed by 150 invited relatives and friends. Altar decorations were two beauty baskets of peonys and other bouquets of orange blossoms and garden flowers.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Starling Trimble organist and Mrs. Charles Burky, vocalist presented a quarter hour musical. Mrs. Trimble playing "Love Greeting" by Elgar; "Love Dream" by Liszt; "Bridal Chorus" by Wagner and "Call Me Thine Own" by Haley, the latter during the ceremony and the Mendelssohn Wedding March for the recessional. Mrs. Burky's numbers were "Because" by Hardelot and "I Love You Truly" by Carrie Jacobs Bond.

Mrs. Walter Schwert of east of the city served her sister as matron of honor and Hurst Sloan of Ashland served as his brother's best man.

Mr. Sloan's niece, Mary Lou Fall of Canton, was flower girl. Ushers were Robert Libens, brother of the bride and Charles Burky.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

The couple left later in the day for a wedding trip through the east and on their return will reside at 223½ East Liberty street in Ashland.

Nervous Jitters Spoil Looks

By MME. QUI VIVE

No life is free of annoyances. Troubles come to us all. Even a millionairess can have a toothache. There are days when everything goes wrong — disappointments, misunderstandings, tiresome interruptions. Instead of the check that should come in the mail, you get a letter from some distant relative relating her woes. When night comes you're worn out and nervous. Sleep isn't restful. You awaken in the morning feeling like the breaking up of a hard winter. Very sad.

Don't let your nerves get the best of you. They will if given their own way. And don't forget that the physical condition has a great deal to do with mental views. When you feel well and strong it is easy enough to be brave. But when your eyes smart, your head aches and you can't drag one foot after the other, the bottom has fallen out of the world.

There are women who are always nervous, who never feel tip-topping, whose feathers are always trailing in the dust. They are miserable and every other member of the family is miserable with them. They miss out in life's fun, and that's a pretty sad state of affairs. What must be done. Something, and soon, because the world has no use for the morbid individual or the grouch.

Give the digestive furnaces the right kind of food. An appetizing, deliciously served meal is a physical and spiritual tonic. Begin the day with a substantial breakfast. It's a long time between a six o'clock dinner and an eight o'clock breakfast; one should stoke up with fruit, coffee, toast, an egg or bacon. The average woman takes a cup of coffee and fancies she is given herself proper nourishment.

If fatigue is pronounced, don't go in for vigorous exercise. Take a short walk, breathing deeply, swinging along easily. Stand tall. Poor posture produces weariness of bone and muscle; and that condition has a deplorable effect upon the nervous system.

Sidestep the whining, irritating individual. It's easy to catch another's mood. If you have to listen to complaints about which you can do nothing, forget them. Relax whenever you have a chance. Relaxing the body helps to calm the soul and soothe the mind. Get to bed early.

ABLE TO win two of the first three tricks in the opponents' suit, the average No Trump declarer thinks it makes no difference whether he wins the first and third tricks, holding up on the second and letting the opponents take it, or whether he holds up on the first trick so he can win the second and third. There is this great factor, however—if you lose the lead once to the partner of the long suit holder, it is better to have him then be blank in your suit and unable to assail one of your stoppers.

This deal carries the tale of two declarers in a duplicate game where the bidding was the same at both tables and West each time let the 7 of his partner's hearts. In each case the 2 went on from dummy and East played the 9. One declarer let East hold the trick, playing the 8. The other took the 9 with the J and was set.

Let's follow the unhappy one. After taking the first trick, he led the spade K to the A and West returned his heart 3, drawing the Q and K, South holding up. East then knocked out the heart A. To get nine tricks South needed two diamonds, but as soon as he led that suit East won with the A and set the contract two with heart tricks.

As for the man who held up on the first trick, he took the second lead of the heart K with the A, then led a spade to West, who had no more hearts to lead. So he switched to a diamond. East won with his A, but South still had the hearts stopped with the J. When East led one the declarer took it, then rattled off his tricks in spades, diamonds and clubs, just enough for his game.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, June 12.

ANOTHER eventful and enterprising day, with much stirring in the direction of high goals and sound ambitions, with happy and prosperous reactions on all departments of living. At the root of such achievements is much stability of character, with industry, application, sound judgment, fidelity and endurance winning their reward in personal success and satisfaction. Elders and superiors readily contribute to this and there may be inheritance or enhanced values in real possessions. The sentimental values of life are likewise responsive.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which their past labors, stability of character and soundness of purpose and objectives are in line for reaching rich reward, either in benefices from elders or superiors or in the increased valuation of investments property or other possessions. There may be parallel satisfactions and preferments in the realm of the cultural social, domestic and emotional, where the flower of past performance blooms in happy concord and joy.

A child born on this day, while having much stability and depth of character and principle, may have much versatility in intellectual, artistic and cultural evpression. It should achieve a lofty position in professional life.

Those luscious-looking real fruits you see in the movies are usually given their appetizing sheen by a "make-up" of glycerine and liquid wax.

FURTHER HELP PROMISED FOR ALLIED CAUSE

by the chief executive.

The Italian government, Mr. Roosevelt said in a historic address at Charlottesville, Va., had rejected the opportunity for peaceful negotiations of its differences with France and England.

"The hand that held the dagger has stuck it in the back of its neighbor," he added sternly, interpolating the sentence into his prepared manuscript

The president delivered his speech to the graduating class of the University of Virginia—which included his son, Franklin, jr.—but to his immediate audience he added the nation and most of the world by radio

Speaking forcefully and with unwonted emotion, he declared that the widening of Europe's war imperiled this country's way of life

"Once more," he exclaimed, "the future of the nation, the future of the American people is at stake."

Mr. Roosevelt summoned the United States to intensify its preparedness for "the task of any emergency and every defense."

An outside world "dominated by the philosophy of force," he said, would mean for the United States the "helpless nightmare of a people without freedom, a people lodged in prison, handcuffed, hungry, and fed through the bars from day to day by the contemptuous, unpitying masters of other continents.

'It is natural also that we should ask ourselves how now we can prevent the building of that prison and the placing of ourselves in the midst of it.

"Overwhelmingly we as a nation, and this applies to all the other American nations, we are convinced that military and naval victory for the gods of force and hate would endanger the institutions of democracy in the western world—and that equally, therefore, the whole of our sympathies lie with those nations which are giving their lifeblood in combat against those forces ..

'In our American unity we will pursue two obvious and simultaneous courses

"We will extend to the opponents of force the material resources of this nation and at the same time, we will harness and up the use of those resources in order that we ourselves in the Americas may have equipment and training equal to the task of any emergency and every defense"

The reaction of official Washington was that President Roosevelt had, in effect, served notice on the world that the United States was shifting its role of neutrality to one of non-belligerency.

Members of congress who heard the president were either enthusiastic in their approval or apprehensive that the speech increased the danger of the nation being drawn into the war Most of those who offered comments endorsed the stand Mr Roosevelt took, but there were some who, like Rep Rogers (R.,Mass.), said 'the speech sounded like a prelude to a declaration of war'

Two aspirants for the Republican presidential nomination were critical in their appraisal Frank Gannett, Rochester N Y, publisher, called the address 'an inflammatory utterance .. likely to promote our getting into the war" Thomas E Dewey New York prosecutor, said that "the words may be the words of a neutral but the voice is the voice of a belligerent"

Mr. Roosevelt made it plain that he intended to drive forward with all energy toward the twin objectives of full material aid to the Allies and a formidably armed America.

"All roads leading to the accomplishments of these objectives must be kept clear of obstructions," he asserted

'We will not slow down or detour

'Signs and signals call for speed—full speed ahead ...

"The program unfolds swiftly and into that program will fit the responsibility and the opportunity of every man and woman in the land to preserve our heritage in days of peril

"I call for effort courage sacrifice devotion Granting love of freedom all these are possible

"And the love of freedom is still fierce still steady in the nation today."

England Cheers Roosevelt Speech.

LONDON — (AP) — President Roosevelt's assurances of material aid from the United States insured an Allied victory in the war against Germany, Clement R. Attlee told the house of commons in a war report today.

From across the Atlantic has come the answer of a great democracy," Attlee said.

"It was as though day had followed night when, only a few hours after the dictator of Italy had made his dastardly announcement before the serried ranks of the blackshirts the president of the United States delivered to the youth of his country a message worthy of a great and free republic sending the whole of America's sympathies to those nations who are giving their lifeblood in combat against the forces of hate

Attlee said Roosevelt had "vitally inspired the free peoples of Europe His assurance that the material resources of his great nation would be placed at the disposal of the Allies makes it inevitable that however hard the road the cause of civilization will in the end prevail"

The house resounded with cheers

Hitler and Mussolini have united to destroy democracy, he said, but "democracy will answer the challenge."

Attlee said "this new attack does not cause us dismay"

"It makes no difference to our stern resolution to defeat all our enemies or to our confidence in our ability to withstand all attacks and achieve victory"

Replying to a question as to why the scheduled secret session had been postponed today. Attlee said "in the face of the new development in the war the prime minister and the service ministers are very heavily occupied"

Substituting for Prime Minister Churchill, who was absent, Attlee told the house that Britain already had seized 11 Italian ships Ten others are in British ports, he said

He accused Mussolini of using "jackal" tactics in entering the war.

WOMAN KILLED IN CAR CRASH

Akronite Meets Death In Early Morning Collision South Of Johnsville on 42.

Her body was removed from under the car by Merwine who rushed to the scene when he heard the crash

"I was listening to the radio when I heard the cars hit," Merwine related to patrolmen. "I rushed out of the house and saw the man climbing up the bank. The woman was under the car and I couldn't roll it over"

He said other motorists stopped and with their aid the car was rolled over

Officers said they were told by Brillhart at the hospital that he and his wife were enroute to get their daughter Ruth a second year student at the school

He said it was the first time that Mrs Brillhart had been out of the city for some time Another daughter, 12, has been in ill health and she had been confined to their home with her They also have a son Robert, 17, who just graduated from high school Brillhart, they said, was unable to explain the cause of the crash

Questioned by officers, the youths were equally unable to explain it

"I don't know what happened," Woolf said. "We were driving along at a moderate speed when all at once the other car came towards us and struck us almost head-on." He said he was right of the center line.

The students told patrolmen they had finished school yesterday and were on their way home

Contract Let Today For Lighting System

Mansfield Senior High Floodlights To be Installed at Stadium Field By September; Cost $8,200

The Mansfield Senior high school athletic board signed a contract with the Ohio Public Service company for the installation of floodlights at Stadium field for $8,200.

Installation of the lights, authorized last November by the Mansfield board of education, will be completed in time for the opening football game Sept 13 with Akron West, Harold W. Arlin, chairman of the athletic board and president of the board of education, said today Work on the lights is expected to start in a few days.

The lighting system will be dedicated at the opening game and all five of the Tygers' home games will be played at night, Arlin stated. Besides Akron West, the Tygers meet Cambridge, Elyria, Massillon and New Philadelphia under the Mansfield arcs.

The floodlights that will bring night football to Mansfield will be among the finest in the nation, providing better visibility than any other high school lighting system in this section of the state, Arlin asserted

Six steel towers, 65 feet tall will support 84 lights and reflectors, throwing brilliant light over the entire field and end zones The lights will be of 1 500 watt power and will be protected by enclosed reflectors to prevent breakage from rain and wind

The towers, three on each side of the field, will be behind the stands so there will be no danger of players being injured by colliding with them. Placing them back of the stands will also leave the entire field of vision open for spectators.

All the wiring will be underground and the lights will be controlled from a central switch panel under the west stands One or more of the towers can be operated in the event the field is used for night pageants or commencement programs Each tower will have 14 lights The reflectors will be 20 inches in diametter.

Bulbs reflectors, and other electrical equipment used in the installation will be purchased from the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, under terms of the contract The Mansfield Structural and Erecting company will erect the towers

"Through the special consideration of the three Mansfield firms, we will be able to have the installation made at about 25 per cent less than the usual cost of lights of this type," Arlin said.

The contract calls for payments extending over a three-year period, and Arlin said the athletic board expected no difficulty in paying for the installation in that time without having to borrow funds

"From a study of 45 schools throughout the nation, we found that football attendance was increased 160 per cent with the installation of lights, and even if attendance here goes up only 100 per cent we will double our annual revenue from football," Arlin pointed out.

With all afternoon games, the Mansfield athletic board has been realizing from $5,000 to $6,000 a year from football. Last year the Massillon game alone, played at Massillon, grossed more than the other contests on the Tygers' schedule, Arlin said

Except for the dedication game with Akron West, there will be no increase in admission to games this year. The opening contest and the Massillon game will be 75 cents, while the others will be 50 cents. All seats will be reserved Season tickets will be sold for $2 50, a 50-cent savings over the single admission price.

Allies Interested In Buying Old U. S. Destroyers

HEAR GERMANS PRODUCE SUBS ON MASS BASIS

Authorities Believe 12 to 20 Small U-Boats Turned Out By Nazis Monthly.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Reports that Germany was turning out submarines on a semi-mass production basis stirred Allied interest today in the possibility of obtaining destroyers from the United States.

Naval circles heard that the Germans were concentrating on the construction of small submarines of 250 tons, which carry six torpedoes and have a cruising range of only 1,000 miles.

Authorities believe that the production rate is 12 to 20 a month. Many of the U-boats are understood to have been built piece-meal in the interior of Germany and assembled at coastal points.

In view of this construction and British destroyer losses, it was learned, the British government would like to buy any destroyers that the United States navy believes it can spare. Well-informed sources estimate that 25 to 35 British destroyers have been sunk and more put out of action.

Canada, too, is known to be interested in naval equipment, if not complete destroyers.

The United States navy has 35 World war destroyers which have been out of active service since the middle 1920's. Officials estimate that it would require an average of two months to get them ready for use. Funds to bring them up to par are included in the emergency defense program. The navy has 27 destroyers under construction.

Present law provides that naval vessels cannot be sold until they have been stricken from the navy's list of useful ships. Congress, however, could authorize direct sale of any naval craft to the Allies.

Reliable sources said that further trade-ins of American warplanes to manufacturers, who could sell them to England and France, were even more imminent than the possible destroyer deal. The army, they said, is considering turning in 150 combat training planes in a manner similar to that by which 50 naval reserve planes already are reaching the Allies.

HUGH MARTIN DIES IN LORAIN

News-Journal Executive, 49, Had Been Ill There Since Memorial Day.

Hugh Martin, secretary-treasurer of the Mansfield News-Journal, widely known throughout newspaper circles in Ohio, died in St. Joseph's hospital, Lorain, at 5:30 p. m. yesterday.

Mr. Martin, who was 49, had been ill since Memorial day. His death was caused by pneumonia and a streptococcus infection.

When the Mansfield Journal was organized in 1930, Mr. Martin was named secretary-treasurer, and continued in the same position for the combined papers, when the Journal and the Mansfield News were consolidated in 1932.

He had been a resident of Lorain since 1922, holding the additional office of secretary-treasurer of the Lorain Journal, sister paper of The News-Journal, since that time.

Mr. Martin was born in Belfast, Ireland, and worked in London before coming to Toronto, Ont. Later, he moved to Cleveland where he was auditor of the Standard Parts company. When that company suspended in 1922, he went to Lorain to become an official of the Journal, and had remained in the newspaper business ever since.

He is survived by his widow, the former Thelma Doolittle of Mansfield; a son, Vincent, and three daughters, Lois, Naomi and Marilyn. A brother, Chris, lives in Whittier, Cal., and he also had a brother in France and a sister in Belfast.

Mr. Martin was a member of Charleston lodge, F. & A. M., Lorain, and the Evangelical Lutheran church there.

Funeral services will be held at the Evangelical church at 2:30 p. m. Thursday. Rev. Herbert Veler, pastor and a former Mansfielder will officiate. Burial will be in Elmwood cemetery, Lorain.

TAFT URGES DEFINITE POWER ON DEFENSE FOR PRESIDENT

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. —(AP)— A national defense program for the United States should define powers for the president and other executives charged with defense duties, says Robert A. Taft, Ohio senator seeking the Republican presidential nomination.

This was one of five points contained in a program "to make us safe from attack" which Taft presented last night in his final campaign speech prior to the Republican national convention at Philadelphia June 24.

Asserting "there is no plan for our national defense," the senator proposed appointment of a joint committee of representatives and senators to work out a program.

His other recommendations:

Appointment of a war resources board, under a single man, preferably an industrialist, to carry out the program for defense production.

Reduction of "unnecessary regulation of industry" with elimination of all "red tape."

Abandonment of the third term idea by President Roosevelt.

"We are facing one of the greatest crises in the history of the world," Taft told the Birmingham Republican luncheon club. " x x x Every American is anxious to see the Allies succeed, and we hope we may stay out of the war. We don't know we can stay out, we can only hope. x x x"

Previously he expressed favor of national defense "adequate for any potential foe," and "guessed" President Roosevelt would be nominated for a third term.

Hammer Slaying Trial Approaches End

40 WITNESSES FOR DEFENSE NOT EXAMINED

Jury Expected to Get Fate Of Restaurant Worker Sometime Today.

(By United Press)

BELLEFONTAINE, O.—A jury of 10 men and two women late today is expected to receive the case of Donald Slater, 19-year-old restaurant worker, accused of beating Fred Jenkins, 51, to death with a hammer.

Abrupt end of defense testimony and the dismissal of 40 witnesses subpoenaed for the defense shortened the expected length of the trial by a day.

Judge Lawrence Zupp assigned the prosecution and the defense counsel two hours each for summation today and then the judge will charge the jury.

Mrs. Minnie Jenkins, 47, accused of complicity with Slater in the killing of her husband at the Jenkins home in Huntsville last Feb. 1, was the principal defense witness yesterday. Merlin Jenkins, 18, her son, also named in a first degree murder indictment, was not called.

She admitted that she and Merlin had taken a day bed from the room in which Jenkins was struck and removed it to the attic of their home five days later. Slater, a roomer at the Jenkins home, the mother and Merlin were arrested Feb. 7.

The body of Jenkins was discovered in a gully near Miamisburg Feb. 3 and Mrs. Jenkins identified it Feb. 6.

Judge Zupp again denied defense motions for a directed verdict of acquital and also a motion that the jury disregard any evidence as proof of first or second degree murder.

DIES AT AGE 74

Mrs. McCullough Succumbs Unexpectedly at Home.

Mrs. Hattie May McCullough, 74, daughter of early settlers of the Mansfield area, died unexpectedly last night at her home on the South Main street road.

The widow of Willard McCullough, she died in the house in which she was born and in which she had lived her entire life. She was the daughter of the late Rufus and Mary Sears, who were among the early settlers of this vicinity. Mrs. McCullough had been an active member of the First Lutheran church.

Her only survivors are a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Minnie McCullough, at home, and three grandsons, Russell and Harry McCullough of Mansfield and Robert of Toledo.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where services will be held at 3:30 p. m. Wednesday with Rev. G. E. Swoyer officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Excerpts From Miss Midnight's Diary.

Broadwayites seldom are permitted a peek into a new night spot until the last of the decorators have been whisked out, the lights are lit, the rhumba band jumping, and the banquettes draped at glittering intervals with Elsa Maxwell, Ethel Merman, Jules Glaenzer, Doris Duke Cromwell, Conde Nast, and other pailletted merrymakers. But the other night, by devious means and the employment of several secret agents, I managed to get into the site of the new club, La Vache sur le Toit, and I learned that a bistro in the process of becoming a bistro is much more of a madhouse than any of the places currently operating at full swing.

Vernon MacFarlane, the chubby, eminent decorator who originated El Morocco's famous zebra stripes, was splashing heavenly blue paint on the walls, and beside him was a lively monkey, doing the same thing with a smaller brush. Mr. MacFarlane and the monkey were holding a conversation.

"A little higher, and spread it thin, Rufus," Mr. MacFarlane was saying.

From time to time the telephone would ring and Mr. MacF. would locate it under a pile of debris. "Yes, Tallulah," he would say. would mean that Tallulah." This would mean that Tallulah Bankhead was on the wire, shooting suggestions to him as fast as she thought them up—and from the number of calls, I would say she was thinking very fast.

Two girls wandering around among the ladders, canvas, brown paper and paint buckets turned out to be Patsy Kelly and Sheila Barrett. They made suggestions, too, but I did not get the impression that Mr. MacFarlane considered them of any great aid. A fellow named Jack Eisner was doing paper sculptures of Katharine Cornell, Gypsy Rose Lee, Orson Welles, Burgess Meredith and Beatrice Lillie, and lining the walls with them.

Over in the corner Spivy was sitting at a piano singing something about being a 100 per cent American girl.

If they do not sweep away too much of the debris and take away the monkey when it opens on June 18, La Vache sur le Toit should be a great hit.

I never thought there was any resemblance between Fefe's satin Monte Carlo and a barber shop until last Tuesday night, when I dropped in and found half of the customers (all the celebrated ones) cutting their hair. Madeleine Carroll was snipping off a blond lock, Fay Bainter and Mrs. Byron Foy had the scissors to their coiffures, and even songwriter Johnny Mercer was trimming off a switch of his hair.

What's this? was my first thought, Samson and Delilah night, or the cafe society equivalent?

It turned out to be just a way of signing Gracie Hartman's autograph book. Gracie gets people's signatures, and then gets a lock of their hair, to paste next to the autographs, just so she can remember whether they're blond, red-headed or brunete.

She was defeated by Otto Preminger, of "Margin for Error." He just couldn't snip off enough hair to make a doll's eyelash. What little he's got is shaved to the bone for his role as the German consul. So he just signed his name.

Over on Swing Street, the Famous Door was having a noisily successful opening, with Teddy Powell in the groove on the podium and celebrities jamming the place until the walls and doors bulged. In fact, one of the walls refused to bulge any more at one point, and a few of the customers just went through a pane of glass near the bar, and out into 52nd street, unhurt. Martha Raye waltzed in in a blue summer dress and a yellow turban. Betty Grable looked cute in polka dots, and Shirley Ross wore a white turban with her light blue dress. Sammy Kaye dropped around to hear how the other bands play, Lyle Talbot and Maxie Rosenbloom gave the place a Brown Derby air, and Mama Berle brought her little boy Milton to hear Frances Faye za-zu-zaz.

Down the street at the Club 18, Fay Bainter made an entrance in white silk and white fox.

"Don't tell me," heckled Frankie Myers, "it's snowing that hard outside."

Lady Furness, an old friend of Hildegarde's, came to hear her sing that same evening and sat at the Savoy-Plaza lounge's ringside in a blue hat of microscopic proportions, and a ribbing mood.

When Hildegarde sang in French, Lady Furness' corrections of her pronunciation were audible for tables around.

Billy Gaxton good naturedly got up and did a turn, applauded by Milli Monti, the chanteuse, the Gilbert Millers, Doris Duke Cromwell, Captain Alaistair McIntosh and Benay Venuta.

Wednesday luncheon at the Algonquin had a very mid-seasony air, with the tables occupied by such interesting calory-cavorters as Lenore Ulric (who looks exotic even at 10 a. m., which is really having glamor), Jesse Royce Landis, Carl Van Vechten, Tallulah Bankhead (fresh from her tour), Walter Huston (if I go into the Algonquin and he's NOT there I leave, thinking I'm in the wrong place) and Conrad Nagel.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—We call 'em film factories, and we say they grind out their celluloid, and THIS is how they work—sometimes:

Loretta Young, Melvyn Douglas, Alexander Hall and P. J. Wolfson are in a huddle beside a bright kitchen set. Miss Young is wearing a fancy black lace thing with flesh-colored slip; the effect is startling, but very, very nice. The other three, and Miss Young, too, are wearing expressions of pained concentration.

They are "going over" lines. They are also improvising lines. They have a script, but they are making it "play" as they rehearse. Hall is the director. "Pinkey" Wolfson is the writer. The story is "He Stayed for Breakfast," a light comedy, the natural follow-up for Hall and Miss Young after "The Doctor Takes a Wife."

They come out of the huddle and go into the rehearsal. Douglas plays a humorless waiter, a "red," reminiscent of the Garbo character in "Ninotchka." Miss Young is a pampered darling of wealth. The scene is her kitchen. She is hiding Douglas in a pantry there. He has just taken a pot shot at a coffee cup held in the fat hand of Miss Young's wealthy husband, played by Eugene Pallette.

The rehearsal. Miss Young enters the kitchen, switches on the light, opens the pantry door. "You may come out now," she says.

Douglas comes out, warm from confinement, complaining. He holds a page of new dialogue, refers to it frequently. He begins nibbling at a cookie from a plate on the kitchen table. Miss Young sweeps around the other side of the table and demands an explanation of the cup-shooting, and Douglas is about to give it—but then he says "Pinky, we need a line to cover here. . . . Suppose I say, 'You wouldn't understand'?"

"I'll try," Loretta picks it up.

So they settle on this, and are about to proceed, but Loretta looks unhappy. If they don't mind, she would like to be spotted on the other side of the table.

"This is my worst possible angle," she says, although she looks pretty good from any angle.

Nobody minds, so they switch places, and Miss Young's left profile is to the camera.

Douglas, while cookie-nibbling, is explaining that when he sees plutocratic Pallette crooking his little finger from his coffee cup "everything goes black." He is demonstrating with the cup.

"You mean red," says Loretta.

"Quit sabotaging me!" cries Douglas.

"It's got to be faster," says Hall. "Get close to her— so close you can shake the cup at her teeth."

* * *

They try it again, and Douglas shakes the cup — and Loretta giggles, which is not in the script. They try it again, from the beginning, and Loretta switches on the lights, but they don't go on.

They do it again, and again. Umpteen rehearsals and nibbled cookies later they are ready to do the scene, minus handy scripts.

It is a fast and funny scene, much faster and funnier than it was before the Wolfson-Hall-Young-Douglas quartet went to work on it and "played" it.

Laurila, Arnold Face Mudhens In Contests Tonight

Mansfield, Battling to Gain on Oilers, Sends Veterans to Hill; First Tilt Starts at 8.

By CHARLES MARTIN

MANAGER DEWEY STOVER, determined to have his Mansfield Braves closer to the top position in the Ohio State league championship race, sends George Laurila and Bob Arnold to the mound tonight against Tiffin in a doubleheader at the Fairground under the arcs.

Laurila, lanky righthander, is scheduled to handle the duties in the first seven-inning contest which is scheduled to get under way at 8 p. m.

Mansfield didn't lose any ground in the title chase last night as the league slate was washed out.

Stover is confident his two veterans can stop the Mudhens tonight, but should they falter he has Alex Radomuis and Tony Scotti ready to rush into relief roles.

The Mansfield fans will witness the first night twin bill of the season, and club officials prepared today to take care of a large gathering.

Only three and a half games out of first place, Mansfield can pick up a half game on the pacesetters by handing Tiffin a double defeat.

* * *

Tonight will be a fine opportunity for Laurila and Arnold to win permanent berths on the Braves' hurling staff. Stover has been impressed by their work, but is watching to see if they can overcome their wildness. In his last start, Arnold gave up 11 free tickets.

Laurila

The Braves' pilot may make a change at the last-minute and send Scotti to the hill against the Mudhens. He possesses a fast ball and a baffling curve and might turn the trick.

With the rest of the lineup set, Stover is concentrating on his moundsmen and hopes to have his four starters set by the middle of this month.

A crack pitching corps will make Mansfield a definite threat to Findlay's league championship. At present Mansfield has the best hitting and defensive team in the circuit. Fans will turn considerable interest to Howard Beals and Hal Hundemer, the Braves' star keystone combination which is developing into one of the league's best defensive units.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK —(AP)— Broadway books have started Joe Louis out at 1-6 over Arturo Godoy . . . and only two weeks ago Lawson Little was telling Boston pals he was as rusty as a tin dipper . . . Consensus in the pubs around here is that the U. S. G. A. brass hats gave Ed Oliver a raw deal particularly since Walter Hagen violated the same rule and got away with it . . . Conn vs. Lesnevich in Detroit wound up seven grand in the red . . .

TAKE-A-BOW DEPT.

So far as we know, Ralph Trost of the Brooklyn Eagles is the only expert who picked Lawson Little to win the open . . . and our old pal, Pete Norton of the Tampa Tribune, picked Sarazen and just missed cashing in.

Tony Galento's announcement that he'll train in secret for Max Baer is only Tony's quaint way of saying little or no training will be done . . . When the Admiral Richard E. TALE OF TWO GOLFERS

When Hagen wasn't there when due,
It did not bother him a bit:
For being Hagen, well he knew
That he could get away with it
But 'twas a different sort of tune.
For Young Ed Oliver, we hear—
He started play a bit too soon
And so was tossed out on his ear.

Fred Apostoli, who refuses to hang 'em up, may make his comeback try against Young Corbett in San Francisco next month. . . . Connie Mack's older brother Mike McGillicuddy, 84, keeps the customers in line at the Shibe park ticket windows.

Up to yesterday Dolph Camilli had hit six homers, each in a different park. He hadn't played in Pittsburgh and failed in Boston. . . . Babe Ruth hasn't seen the Yanks since opening day. . . . Bill Werber of the Reds shifts to lighter bats as the season wears on. Last summer he made four weight changes.

Lose Ground In Association

Blues Face Ouster From First Place Position.

(By Associated Press)

The Kansas City Blues, always at their best when the pressure is on, faced today the loss of first place in the American Association unless they regain their usual brilliant form in the last two games of their eastern trip.

The leaders dropped to within one game of Minneapolis in second place last night by losing to a stubborn Columbus team, 5 to 4 in 10 innings. Jimmy Bucher singled in the tenth and scored on Jack Sturdy's double with the winning run.

Minneapolis clouted two Indianapolis pitchers for 17 hits and a 9 to 2 triumph.

* * *

St. Paul built up a 4-0 margin on Louisville in the early innings and went on to win easily, 7 to 4.

* * *

The defeat knocked Louisville from fourth to sixth place. Milwaukee, whose game at Toledo was rained out, moved into fourth place and Columbus into fifth. Indianapolis is third now a half game ahead of Milwaukee and Columbus and only one game ahead of Louisville in sixth.

ENTERS SECOND ROUND

HAVERFORD, Pa.—(UP)—Anne Miller, Charlestown, W. Va., went into the second round of the 45th annual Eastern States Women's Tennis tournament today after defeating Joy Hartman, Pittsburgh 7-9, 6-3, 6-2.

Pro Football's Sponsor Dies

Dr. Harry March Was Head Of National League.

CANTON—(AP)—The man credited with fathering professional football and who gave the sensational Jim Thorpe a chance at stardom in the sport is dead.

He is Dr. Harry A. March, a physician here and in New York; organizer of the New York Giants and the Canton Bulldogs pro football teams; and one-time head of the national pro football league.

It was with the Canton team that Thorpe, Carlisle Indian, gained some of his football fame.

Dr March organized the New York Giants from a group of erstwhile college stars. He was the author of a book titled "Professional Football: Its Ups and Downs," published about two years ago.

His death at his home last night followed a long illness.

Graduated from Mt. Union college at Alliance, O., he received his degree in medicine in 1901 from the old Columbian University of Washington, D. C. During the World war he served with the medical corps at Fort Knox, Ky., and afterward studied in New York, establishing practice there.

He also was engaged in a New York theater enterprise for a time.

* * *

Surviving are his widow, the former Edith Frease of Canton, and a son, Capt. K. F. March of Fort Monmouth, N. J.

Services will be held here tomorrow.

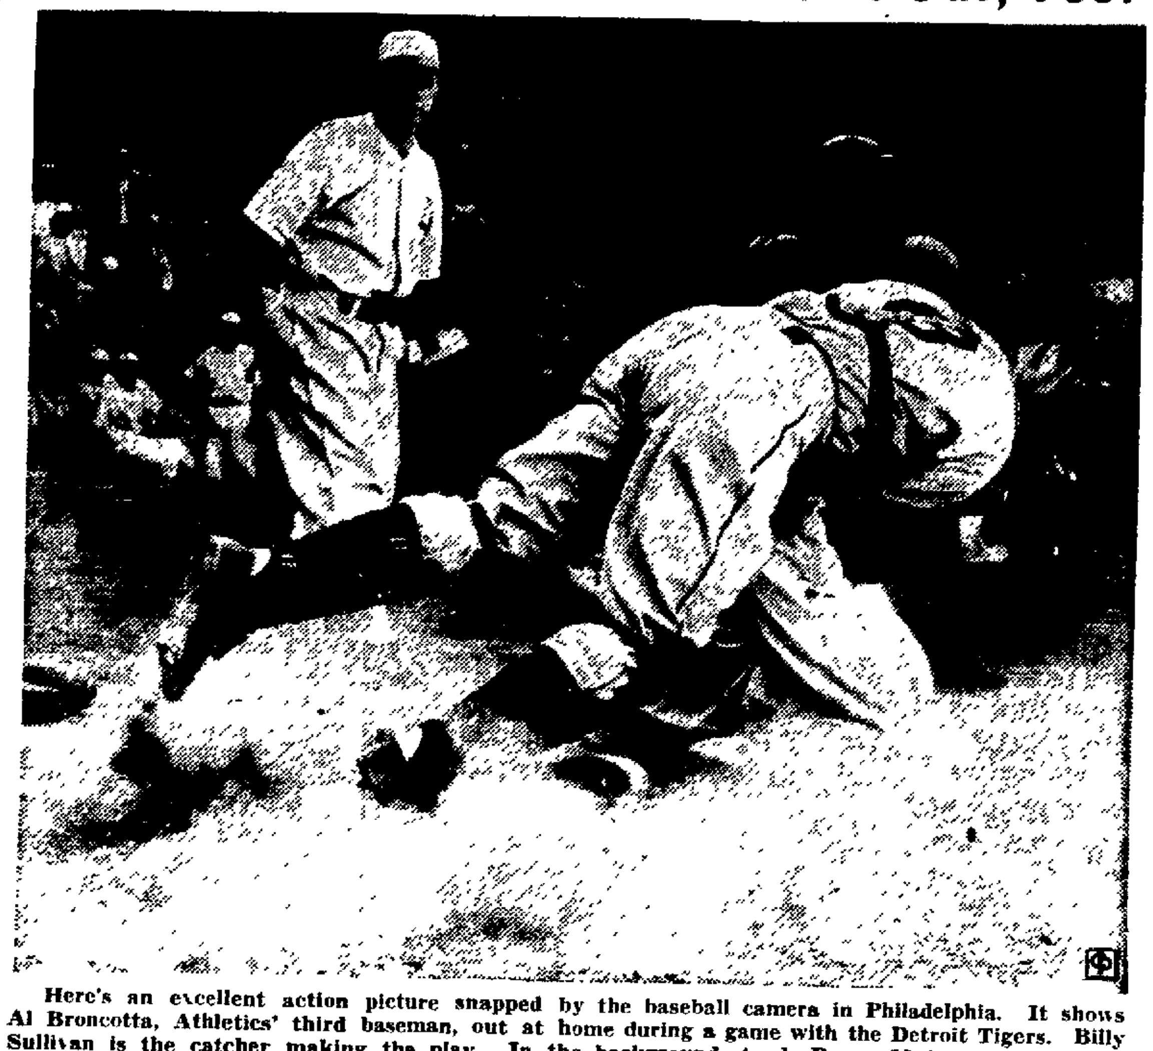
Hurler Loses First Game of Season

HOUSTON, Tex.—(AP)—Howard Pollett's 12-game winning streak skidded in the mud last night as Shreveport defeated Houston's rookie southpaw 2-1. Each Shreveport run was scored on a single, a fall on the wet turf by a Houston fielder, and an error. The loss was the first this season for Pollett.

'A' GOLFERS PLAY AT POSSUM RUN TONIGHT

Schedule for tonight's matches at Possum Run in the News-Journal Class 'A' golf league is as follows: Graystone Nite club vs Oaks Club, Long Bar vs Sloan's Drugs, Richland Printing vs Yuncker Brothers, and Mansfield Athletic Supply vs Barres & Schmid Tires.

Tag! You're Out! And The Runner is Out, Too!



Here's an excellent action picture snapped by the baseball camera in Philadelphia. It shows Al Broncotta, Athletics' third baseman, out at home during a game with the Detroit Tigers. Billy Sullivan is the catcher making the play. In the background stands Benny McCoy, A's infielder.

Commissioner Favors Coaches on Boards

By LARRY NEWMAN

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Sports pickups from Mud Sock to the Main Stem . . . Ohio High School Athletic Commissioner H. R. Townsend is heartily in favor of placing coaches on the various district athletic control boards. Jim Robinson, president of the Ohio Football Coaches organization, received that word in a communication from Townsend recently. . . .

* * *

The chief objection to county and district as well as state boards in the past few years has been the complete domination by school administration officials. A change may be in the making. . . .

John Wagner, captain and second baseman of the Greenfield McClain high school team, runner-up in the state Class A tourney to Columbus North, and Bob "Lefty" Miller, ace southpaw hurler, have joined the Washington, Pa., club in the Pennsylvania loop. Washington is a St. Louis Cardinal farm. . . .

Kenny Weber, former Defiance and Bowling Green State university cager, has been named coach at Townsend high school in Sandusky county. Kenny had a great season last year at Racine, but took the new job because it is closer to his home in Bowling Green. . . .

Although Les Steers, San Francisco Olympic club high jumper, bettered the world record recently with a leap of 6 feet 10⅛ inches, the mark will not be accepted because there were no official checkers on hand. The record is held jointly at 6 feet 9¾ inches by Dave Albritton, of Ohio State, and Cornelius Johnson, California.

Massillon's George Slusser, forward passer a la Friedman, will enroll at Dartmouth. And Hillis Hume, Alliance's scoring machine, will enroll at the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, if he passes the physical exams soon.

Likewise John Swezey, Massillon tackle, is working for a midshipman appointment. . . . Lloyd Reese and Leo Benjamin, New Philadelphia's great pair, will probably attend Tennessee. Reese, however, will first attend prep school. Herb Hines, a splendid gridder, will enroll at Ohio university . . . Also slated for Ohio U. is Jackie Castignola, the New Philly cage leader. . . .

Jack Larkins and Merritt Newcomer, both members of Findlay high school's football and basketball teams, will probably be playing with Harry Ockerman's teams at Bowling Green State in a couple of seasons. . . . Louis Ryman, Canton McKinley's ace, is Mt. Union bound they say. . . .

Remember Buddy Mercer, Newark high's great basket shooter of a couple seasons back? After tries at Ohio Wesleyan and Ohio university, it is now hinted that Buddy will enroll at Ohio State next September. . . .

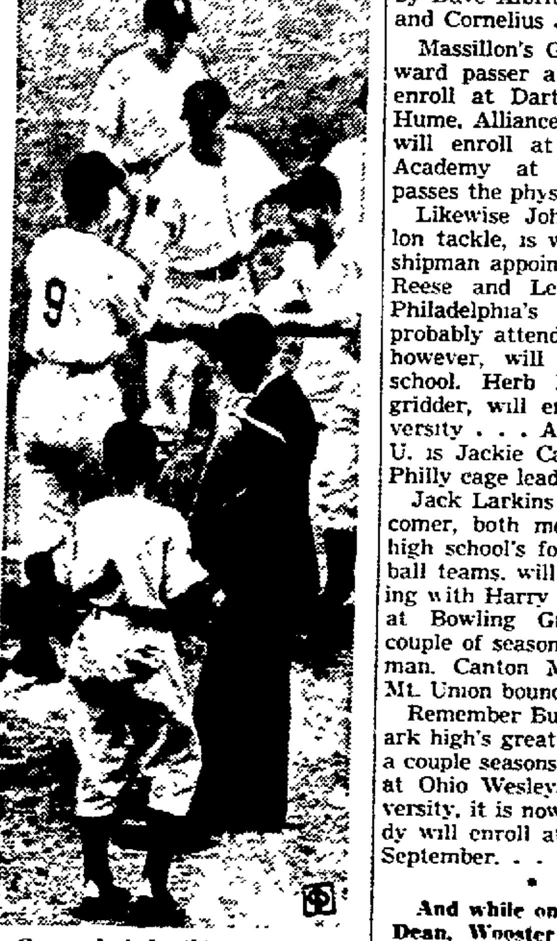
And while on the subject, Hal Dean, Wooster high's ace athlete, is Denison bound, as is Eric Childs, of Hamilton. Another likely Denison candidate will be Warren Schollers, now at Ohio State, who will transfer to the Granville school before the summer ends. . . .

* * *

Former Wooster college athletes will gather Friday for the annual "W" Men's reunion. Coach L. C. Boles, completing his 25th year as physical education director and football coach, will be the honored guest. For many years he coached all sports but has been "tapering off" in the past few seasons.

Convention?



Say, what is this, a convention? Jimmy Bloodworth of the Washington Nats has just banged a home run with the bases full. Teammates Jake Early, Hub Walker and Zeke Bonura are reaching for Jimmy's mitt.

PLAY PLYMOUTH CLUB

Tinkey Lumber's softball team will journey to Plymouth tonight to tangle with the Plymouth softball club on the Plymouth diamond at 6 p. m. Stub Winebrenner will take the mound for the Tinkeys in tonight's fracas, with Tip Williams behind the plate.

News-Journal Ladies Golf League Ready For Action

THE News-Journal Ladies' golf league has been organized and will begin competition Friday at 1 p. m. at Possum Run links, officials of the league announced today.

Matches slated for Friday are Golden-Russell vs. DeMilo Beauty Salon, and Meder Recreation vs. Bates Candies. These are the only teams entered in league this year.

Last year's champions, Guiher's Grocers, will not enter a team in the competition this year, officials announced today.

All matches in the Ladies' league will be for eighteen holes. Other golf leagues in the city play only nine.

* * *

Vera Oberlander is president of the league this year, while Thelma Linster holds the office of secretary-treasurer.

Jack Dempsey to Box Six-Round Exhibition

DETROIT—(U.P.)—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight fight champion of the world, will box a six-round exhibition with a wrestler in Detroit July 15, Matchmaker Eddie Lewis said today. Lewis said Dempsey's opponent would be Bull Curry, "bad man" of the heavyweight wrestling ranks. The site has not yet been selected but Lewis believed it would be either the University of Detroit stadium or the State Fairgrounds coliseum.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—A few sport divots sliced out en route home from Cleveland

While I think the U. S. G. A. was forced to abide by its rules and was technically justified in disqualifying Ed Oliver for starting before his scheduled time in the national open, that august body now should make certain at least one official remains in the starting tent at all times to prevent repetition of such a mistake in the future.

The officials were lunching when Oliver teed off, but as Gene Buck expressed it, "the U. S. G. A. should give up pie a la mode so that the Oliver tragedy never happens again."

Bobby Jones said the U. S. G. A. did the only right thing, but added that Oliver's loss of a chance in the play-off was the most unfortunate golfing occurrence of which he ever had heard. . . .

The citizens of Cleveland are a peculiarly unenthusiastic lot. Although their Indians are only a step out of first place in the American league, the fans have already conceded the pennant to the New York Yankees. . . . Cleveland can't believe the Indians are capable of halting the Yank drive. . . . And speaking of the Indians, President Alva Bradley passes along the following story about young Bobby Feller . . .

During winter training most of the players took one afternoon off and left Feller alone on the field. An hour later a coach came by and was horrified to find Feller sliding into third base again and again with no concern for his million dollar arm. The young pitcher calmly explained that he wanted to make sure that if he ever hit a triple he wouldn't be thrown out because he didn't know how to slide. . . .

When Jack Dempsey signed for a 10-round bout with Wrestler Cowboy Luttrell in Atlanta he wasn't so much attempting a comeback as keeping a pledge. . . . Years ago Dempsey vowed he never would hit a man outside the ring. Now the only way he can settle with Luttrell for the latter's supposedly slurring remarks is to take his gloves down off the wall and swing his punches in legal, Queensberry manner. . . .

* * *

Arturo Godoy says he will discard his bob-bob-bobbing style when he meets Joe Louis again this month. . . . The Argentine will come out of his patented tortoise shell crouch and attempt to knock the champion out. . . . Godoy has a good left hook, but an even better straight uppercut butt . . . which should inspire sportswriters to say they pick Louis . . . but . . .

Make Gain On Loop Leader

Charleston Senators Move Closer to Terriers.

CHARLESTON —(AP)— Charleston's Senators were 35 percentage points closer to pace-setting Canton in the Mid-Atlantic league today by virtue of a sterling two-hit performance by Pitcher Bob Haas.

The night's tilt was a pitching duel until the seventh, when Bud Cain of the Terriers faltered with two out, and the Senators went on to win 2-0.

* * *

Cellar-dwelling Portsmouth, meanwhile, handed Youngstown a 5-1 defeat by capitalizing on four Brown errors and effective hurling by Southpaw Clem Dreisewerd. It was Portsmouth's first win in eight starts.

* * *

Dayton and Akron, rained out, were to catch up today with a double-header.

Major League Pennant Races At Standstill

National, American Clubs Right Back Where They Started Early This Season.

By JUDSON BAILEY, Associated Press Sports Writer.

THE MAJOR LEAGUE pennant races are tighter than a new pair of shoes and just as fancy to look at. But they don't seem to be going anywhere.

The National league struggle today is right back in the complicated spot it got into on May 27.

Brooklyn's baffling Dodgers pushed past the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-7 yesterday and into first place in the percentage standings of the senior circuit by a single point. They have won 29 games and lost 13 for .690. The Cincinnati Reds, who were idle yesterday, have won 31 games and lost 14 for a .689 percentage.

What's more the Reds still are half a game in front on won-lost reckoning. This is the tangle these same clubs were in a couple of weeks ago

The American league squabble is nearly as bad, the Boston Red Sox holding only a small percentage margin over the Cleveland Indians with whom they are even in games won and lost. The Detroit Tigers are only a single game behind and the fourth place New York Yankees three.

The status quo of the junior circuit leaders was preserved by the weatherman yesterday. In the only game that was played the St. Louis Browns spanked the Washington Senators 7-4 and moved into six place in the standings. Each team made ten hits, but the Senators committed two errors behind Sid Hudson.

The two games played in the National league were hitting exhibitions. In the Brooklyn-Pittsburgh melee 17 players saw service for each team, five pitchers and two catchers included for each.

There were 25 hits in this game and 28 in the one at St. Louis in which the Boston Bees crushed the Cardinals 12-2. The difference was that the Bees owned 21 of the total of 28 while Lefty Joe Sullivan kept the Redbirds effectively caged.

* * *

Sons of Herman Play Galion Club Today

Seeking their third straight triumph, the Sons of Herman softballers play host to the Galion National Vaults in a single tilt at Liberty park at 6 p. m. today. Manager Frank Beeber has Freddie Carver and Jim Fullager available for mound duty. The Galion team is composed of leading players from Crestline, Bucyrus and Galion. The visitors defeated the Mansfield Wreckers recently.

Bucky Walters To Face Phils

Hurler Will Attempt to Regain Loop Lead for Reds.

CINCINNATI —(AP)— The Reds assigned Bucky Walters, then star hurler who has won nine games this season, to field duty against the Phils today in an attempt to regain the phantom top position in the National league from Brooklyn.

Facing the twisters of Walter Beck, with a 1-1 record, the Rhinelanders will battle for ground lost as they remained idle yesterday while Brooklyn beat the Pirates.

The victory left Brooklyn one percentage point ahead of the Reds in their battle for the league lead, which has changed hands between the two teams three times in two days.

The Rhinelanders' hopes were high, with Walters pitching today and Paul Derringer assigned to Wednesday's night encounter against the sixth place Phils, who have won 15 and lost 25 games.

The Reds have won two games while dropping one to Doc Prothro's boys.

English Derby To Be Run Tomorrow

LONDON —(U.P.)— The English Derby will be run for the 161st time tomorrow under conditions so altered by the war that little remains of the great sporting classic except its name and its distance.

The field of 18 colts named for the mile and a half race will be sent over the Suffolk Stakes course at Newmarket, 90 miles north of here, instead of over the hallowed turf at nearby Epsom Downs, which has been the scene of the derby for more than a century and a half.

Indians Trail Boston

Feller Has Task of Reversing the Teams' Orders In Standings.

BOSTON — (AP) — With the Cleveland Indians trailing the league-leading Boston Red Sox on percentage points only, Manager Oscar Vitt today chose Bob Feller for the task of reversing the teams' order in standings.

The Tribe meets its No. 1 rival bolstered by the purchase of Nate Andrews, 26-year-old right hander, from the St. Louis Browns.

Andrews, possessor of an overhand curve ball, was drafted by the Browns last fall from Columbus of the American association. He won 17 games, lost nine last year. Farmed by the Browns to the St. Paul association club, he has won one and lost three this season.

* * *

Vitt now must decide which player will be dropped to make room for him, the club roster now being up to the 25-player limit.

Andrews will report to the club Thursday as the Indians return home to play a postponed game with Detroit before starting a three-game series against the Philadelphia Athletics.

* * *

Feller, beaten by the New York Yankees in his last start, will oppose Jack Wilson, who has won two and lost none this season.

Drive With Determination

This feminine golfer is putting plenty of determination into her drive. She is Mrs. Gregg Lifur, who has won the Catalina Island women's championship for the fourth time. Mrs. Lifur shot a record-smashing 68 over the course. In the background is Phyllis Banat, one of Mrs. Lifur's opponents.

16 Top Flight Professionals Enter Tourney at Inverness

TOLEDO — (INS) — Sixteen top flight professional golfers led by Lawson Little, newly-crowned national open champion, will tee off Thursday morning in the sixth annual four-ball invitational tournament at Inverness golf club.

One of the most unique golf tournaments in the world, the event will continue through Sunday with the 16 professionals paired and playing 126 holes.

Each team of two plays every other team for a top prize of $1,500. With scoring based on best ball, match play, there are no eliminations.

Little is paired with Harold (Jug) McSpaden, who shot practice rounds with the open titlist at Cleveland's Canterbury course before the three-day open.

Paired with Byron Nelson, Inverness pro, and 1939 open champ, is the colorful Walter Hagen. The six other pairings are:

Henry Picard and Johnny Revolta; Sam Snead, the first day sensation of the open, and Ralph Guldahl; Horton Smith, who finished one stroke behind the two open leaders, and Jimmy Thomson; Ed Dudley and Billy Burke; Jimmy Demaret and Dick Metz, Clayton Heafner and Gene Sarazen, who played off a tie with Little Sunday.

* * *

Last year three teams were deadlocked and Revolta broke it to win with a 35-foot birdie putt on the first extra hole.

Ohio's Collegiate Gridders Have Heavy Schedule In Fall

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio's collegiate gridders will meet a flock of folks this fall, a quick glance at the 1940 schedule disclosed today.

The Buckeye brigade goes visiting to 13 other states for 47 contests, while invaders from 15 other realms will journey into Ohio for 72 games, making a grand total of 119 engagements with teams from foreign fields.

A slight slip in the number of nocturnal scraps is due. 32 night games being booked in place of the 35 played in 1939 Youngstown, newest member of the state's pigskin parade, and Findlay lead in the night tilt sector with six each. Youngstown plays all its at-home encounters under the lights

Wooster has a strictly-Saturday schedule, except for the Thanksgiving day game, all Friday engagements having been erased from the Scot slate. Others having no night games are Ohio State, Akron, Hiram, Case, Wittenberg, Toledo, Ohio University. Miami, Defiance, Kent State, De Sales and Oberlin.

Ohio teams go to Michigan for eight games; to Pennsylvania, New York and Indiana for seven; to Kentucky for six; West Virginia for three; Illinois and Canada for two, and Alabama, South Carolina, Maryland, Massachusetts and New Jersey for one each.

Pennsylvania and Michigan will send 13 invaders into the Buckeye state, and Indiana will send a dozen. Other invading states, and the number of games they will play here, are: Kentucky and West Virginia 7; New York 2; and Illinois, Minnesota, Massachusetts, Alabama, Missouri, South Carolina, Kansas, Canada and Tennessee, one each

Xavier University of Cincinnati, in addition to two night contests, has three Sunday games slated. John Carroll of Cleveland has one Sabbath engagement.

* * *

Ohio University's Bobcats, with nine games booked, play the first four at home and the last five on the road.

DENIES RUMOR ON NEW STATION

B. & O. Official Says New Depot Won't Be Built on Bowman; Stays on Mulberry.

Contrary to reports being circulated that the Baltimore and Ohio railroad will locate its new passenger depot at Bowman street, company officials today said the $10,500 building will be built just west of the present structure on North Mulberry street.

R. F. McCann, company agent here, termed the rumors "unfounded." He said the North Mulberry street site had already been surveyed and that work was scheduled to start July 10.

The new structure, expected to have the appearance of a modern residence will be completed this summer. When the new depot is finished, the structure now in use will be torn down and the grounds improved.

B. & O. officials announced plans to construct a new station here last December and last week said that construction would be started no later than July 10. Inclement weather has been chiefly responsible for delay in getting work started, they said.

THEATERS

Romantic Comedy-Drama

The well-meant efforts of a young Britisher to reunite a married couple, comprise the basis of the new romantic comedy, "You Can't Fool Your Wife," showing Wednesday at the Madison. Lucille Ball and James Ellison are co-starred in the feature, with Robert Coote as the fixer-upper. The co-feature is "A Bill of Divorcement" with Maureen O'Hara, Adolph Menjou, Fay Bainter and Herbert Marshall.

Play Written For Cast.

The marital comedy "My Favorite Wife" showing at the Ohio, was written especially for Irene Dunne and Cary Grant by the famous Broadway playwrights, Bella and Samuel Spewack. The efforts of an attorney to solve the legal and domestic problem of having a legally dead wife return home on the night of his honeymoon with his second wife provide the basis of the amusing story.

Hardy Series and 'Remember'

Gay comedies concerning married life seem to be the principal themes for films these days. So showing at the Majestic is the romantic team of Greer Garson and Robert Taylor, who shine in "Remember?" Lew Ayres provides the complication in this set-up. But getting back to a more normal vein is one of the favorites "Judge Hardy and Son," starring Lewis Stone, Mickey Rooney and Fay Holden.

Tarkington Love Story.

Jackie Cooper and Betty Field, who became sweethearts of the nation in "What a Life" are together again in "Seventeen," the Booth Tarkington immortal story of young love, which is showing at the Ritz theater. The co-feature is "Barricade" in which Alice Faye and Warner Baxter find perilous adventure in a remote American consulate besieged by fierce bandits.

Bob Burns and Gene Autry.

Bob Burns who has one of the best roles of his career as a lawyer philosopher in the film "Our Leading Citizen" is seen in this story at the Park. The story tells how Bob solves industrial problems in a thriving American city by resorting to the good old American way of doing things. The second feature is "Rancho Grande" a story of ranch life with Gene Autry.

PAM—The Colonel's Task! By A. W. Brewerton

I'VE JUST TALKED TO DOCTOR BOOTH—HE AGREES THAT PAM SHOULD BE WARNED—TO SOME EXTENT—TO SOFTEN—PREPARE HER FOR THE BLOW—IF IT COMES!—HE INTENDED SUGGESTING IT TO US, HIMSELF! COLONEL —I—I JUST CAN'T BRING MYSELF TO DO IT! WILL—WILL YOU?
THE LITTLE BAND OF PAM'S LOYAL FRIENDS HAVE GATHERED AT THE HOSPITAL TO BE NEAR HER WHEN THE SIGHT TEST IS MADE! THIS IS TO TAKE PLACE IN A FEW MINUTES, NOW!
A HARD THING TO DO, GORDON! I—I SHRINK FROM BREAKING SUCH CRUEL NEWS TO HER—BUT I AGREE, SHE SHOULD BE TOLD SOMETHING!

STOCKS CLIMB 3 POINTS IN MARKET RALLY

Nervous Tension Over Italian Entry Into War Lessens On Wall Street.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The stock market put a rallying foot forward today as nervous tension over the Italian war plunge lessened gains ranged from 1 to 3 points at the best.

Bonds were mixed with foreign loans falling. "Free" sterling and the French franc pushed up briskly. Industrial staples trailed stocks to higher ground.

Prominent among advancing shares were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Douglas Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Sperry, Lockheed, General Motors, Chrysler, Willys-Overland, Anaconda, Kennecott, Standard Oil of N. J., American Telephone, Westinghouse, International Harvester and International Paper & Power.

Liveliness of steels reflected partly forecasts mill operations in some districts would top the 90 per cent of capacity level by the end of the week.

Noted was the condition statement of federal reserve member banks in 101 cities, disclosing that, for the week ended June 5, loans to commerce, industry and agriculture increased $1,000,000.

JULIANA SENT FROM WAR ZONE

Netherlands Princess and Two Daughters Arrive Safely In Canada.

OTTAWA, Ont.—(INS)—Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands and her two children arrived in Halifax, N. S., today refugees from war.

Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King announced the arrival of Juliana and the young princesses—Beatrix, 2½, and Irene, 9—and said they would come here later as guests of the Earl of Athlone, new governor general of Canada.

Mackenzie King's announcement said the family group, the first royal refugees to seek safety in Canada, had come to this dominion on the invitation of the governor general and his wife, Princess Alice, to whom Juliana is related.

SUSPENDED

Six-Month Workhouse Sentence Held Up For Mother.

Mrs. Mae Belle Milligan, 396 Oak street, who was arrested June 7 in Columbus for abandoning a small child, on a complaint filed by her husband, Harold J. Milligan, was given a suspended sentence of six months in the workhouse by Judge C. J. Anderson in probate court yesterday.

Arrangements were made with the parents of the husband and wife to provide homes for the two children of the Milligans, one 2 years old and the other less than one. Mrs. Milligan is to take the baby to her parents in Bellville and care for it, while the father is to have the older child cared for by his parents.

Mrs. Milligan was taken in custody in Columbus where she had taken the youngest child, leaving the other one in Mansfield. She told the court her husband had told her to "get out." Her sentence was suspended on condition she take care of one child.

GRIM BRITAIN DETERMINED TO FIGHT TO END

England Waits Word of First Attack by Italians In Spreading War.

greater than that of the defender."

The major German attack on both sides of Rethel has made virtually no progress, it was said, while the Nazis have suffered tremendous losses in both men and tanks.

Through articles comparing the strength of Italy with that of the Allies, the British public was told that "Mussolini cannot win."

Diplomatic circles speculated regarding the position of Turkey and—even more important—on how long Spanish Generalissimo Francisco Franco will be able to remain neutral now that Italy has plunged into the conflict.

The concensus was that Franco appears genuinely anxious to preserve neutrality, but that Italo-German pressure within is known to be tremendous. Thus, Londoners felt, it would be foolish to count on Spanish neutrality for more than a few weeks.

Turkey's position—for war on the side of the Allies or for neutrality—should be clarified during the next 48 hours, authorities said.

Meanwhile, Allied spheres in the Mediterranean sent reports emphasizing that all preparations had been made to meet any Italian assault from any direction, and that all the Allied armed forces are anxious for a "crack at the Italians."

The Mediterranean situation, however, obviously was of secondary importance to that in France, and it was to Paris that most eyes were turned.

Anti-Italian riots in British cities and warnings that the Italian people will suffer in the war were among Britain's first responses to Mussolini's declaration.

British military circles conceded that Italy's entry means a great increase in the German armed forces. The Italians will fight under German leadership in contrast to their own poor command in the last war.

It is doubted whether the Germans would order an attack on the British base at Malta, which is described as a "tough nut," while it is felt that Cyprus lies too far from Italian bases of operation. Tunis is probably the easiest Italian goal in Africa, but French defenses along the Tunisian-Libyan border are strong.

Any attack on Egypt would necessitate cross of a 300-mile waterless desert for which task motorized vehicles are held to be impractical at this time of year.

SETS 75 CENTS AS TOP LOAN ON COUNTY WHEAT

Richland Rate Cent Higher Than Last Year, Chairman Of County AAA Says.

Richland county farmers who keep within their AAA crop allotments this year will be eligible for wheat loans up to 75 cents a bushel, Guy L. Taylor, county AAA chairman, said today.

The loan rate will be one cent higher than last year when wheat was selling for about 20 cents less per bushel than now.

The 75-cent rate is for grade No. 1 wheat. The rate for grade 2 is 74 cents; grade 3, 72 cents; grade 4, 69 cents, and grade 5, 66 cents. Taylor said most of the wheat marketed in Richland county comes in the grade 2 classification.

Taylor said farmers who comply with the federal AAA requirements will be assured of an average return of 93 cents per bushel for their grain, regardless of the current market figure. That amount includes soil conservation and price parity payments totaling 19 cents a bushel which can be collected for full compliance with the federal crop program.

Loans granted on wheat stored in approved warehouses will mature in eight months or on April 30, 1941, whichever date is earlier, Taylor said. Loans on farm-stored wheat will mature in 10 months.

In view of the unsettled world market conditions, loans will be made subject to call on demand, at which time farmers may pay off the loan plus interest, or deliver the wheat to the Federal Commodity Credit corporation, the chairman added. He said it is not anticipated that it will be necessary to call loans before the maturity date.

ELECTION SET

Community Fund Will Name Trustees, Executive Committee.

The annual meeting of the Mansfield Community Fund "stockholders" will be held at 4 p. m. Wednesday at the Public library in the Larwill room.

Forty trustees will be elected and an executive committee to serve through the ensuing year. Trustees and the executive committee are elected in an open meeting for all contributors to the Fund during the 1940 campaign.

House Committee Adds Millions to Defense Measure

BILL ADOPTED TO GIVE NAVY 22 WARSHIPS

Congress Majority Lines Up Behind Roosevelt Aid To Allies Pledge.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Voting millions more than President Roosevelt asked, the house appropriations committee today reported a $1,706,053,908 supplemental defense bill.

The committee added $319,731,898 to the latest funds sought by the president for the program to make America invulnerable.

This will bring total defense appropriations and authorizations at this session of congress to $5,193,767,692, including some deficiency funds now being spent. For fiscal 1941 the prospective total is $4,915,767,692.

The house meantime completed congressional action on the Vinson bill to increase the navy's authorized tonnage 11 per cent by adding 22 warships to the fleet. The bill now goes to the White House.

The bill was reported as a majority of congress aligned itself behind the president's pledge of total, short-of-war aid to the hard-pressed Allied forces. The White House reported receipt of thousands of telegrams endorsing this policy.

The new measure contained funds for starting construction of 68 new warships. Another 68 already are being built and 24 others were appropriated for in earlier measures. The bill also carries funds for 3,000 army planes toward the goal of 9,000 army aircraft by Dec. 31, 1941.

The army's total budget for 1941 would be $2,854,701,772, and the navy's total 1941 outlay $2,061,065,920.

Besides funds for the army and navy, the measure contained $32,000,000 for the civil aeronautics authority to expand its pilot training program to take in 45,000 youths during the coming fiscal year.

Funds also were provided for the federal bureau of investigation's drive against fifth columns. The bill gave the FBI $3,358,800 for 500 additional G-men.

The White House said Mr. Roosevelt's promise to throw this nation's "material resources" into the Allied struggle against Germany and Italy brought thousands of telegrams.

Secretary Stephen T. Early said the telegrams were virtually unanimous in approving his stand.

So heavy was the flow of messages that regular wire facilities at the White House communications center were swamped.

Congressional sentiment generally echoed the president's views.

GETS PAROLE

Mansfielder Among 90 O.S.R. Inmates Passed by Board.

One Richland county man and one from Crawford county were among the 90 prisoners at Ohio State Reformatory who were granted paroles today by the Ohio Pardon and Parole Commission.

Howard Sunnucks, 29, Mansfield, was granted a parole effective Jan. 2, 1941, when he will have served almost 18 months on a one to 15 year sentence for breaking and entering at night. Sunnuck entered the institution July 17, 1939.

Samuel Starner, Bucyrus, was sent to the Reformatory from Bucyrus for breaking and entering on June 23, 1939 and his parole will be effective Sept. 3. He was sentenced for one to 15 years and will have served little less than 15 months.

Feast of Shabuot Services Continue Through Thursday

Special services marking the Feast of Shabuot open today at Temple Emanuel, 132 West Second street, and continue through Thursday, Rabbi David Rube announced today.

Feast of Shabuot is known as the feast of weeks and symbolizes the agricultural and historical aspects of the festival. The agricultural aspect symbolizes the beginning of the first wheat harvest in Palestine, and the historical aspect symbolizes the proclamation of the Ten Commandments at Mt. Siani.

Services will be held at the Temple at 7:30 p. m. today, 7:30 a. m. Wednesday and memorial services are scheduled for 7:30 a. m. Thursday. Rabbi Rube will conduct the services.

PUBLIC PARKS GROUP SEEKS HOLIDAY FUND

$700 For Fourth of July Celebration Wanted By Association.

The Mansfield Public Parks association launched its campaign for funds for the community celebration of Fourth of July this week and hopes to raise more than $700. The fund will be raised by popular subscription.

The city has been divided into zones for the campaign, with park presidents in charge of a zone. They are Gilbert Logan, Prospect park; Harry Bowman, Johns park; A. R. Hering, North Lake park; Frank Glasgow, Maple Lake park, and Gordon Watson, Liberty park.

The association estimates that the cost of the community celebration, with its evening show and big fireworks display, will cost $1,600. It already has $535 of this which was raised by dances given at the Coliseum last winter and spring, and estimate a possible $400 to be made from box seats and concessions at the county Fairground where the celebration will be held.

This will be the third annual year that the Parks association has sponsored a community celebration of Independence day and each year they have been attended by thousands of persons. Last year's show was broken up by a severe storm.

OFFICIALS TO STUDY METERS

Mansfielders Travel to Zanesville to Watch Parking Operations.

With a proposal calling for the installation of parking meters in downtown Mansfield under consideration by council, city and Chamber of Commerce officials will go to Zanesville tomorrow to study the operation of machines in use there.

Zanesville installed several hundred of the meters about two years ago and officials here are interested in obtaining first hand information concerning public acceptance of the metered plan of parking.

A bill calling for the installation of the meters to regulate parking on downtown streets has already been given one reading by council and is scheduled to come up for a second time at the next session. It will probably not be voted on before the July meeting.

Those who will make the trip by automobile include Arthur L. Croak, of council's traffic committee and sponsor of the measure, Councilman Jacob Kutschall, Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton and John G. Routzon, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

TWO INDICTED BY GRAND JURY

Loudonville Man, Sons, Charged With Purchasing Stolen Property.

R. L. Polsky, a Loudonville junk dealer, and his son, Ben, were indicted by the Ashland county grand jury yesterday on charges of receiving stolen property, reported stolen from the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company several weeks ago.

Seven true bills, five of them secret, were returned by the jury.

The loot Polsky and his son are charged with purchasing included block tin valued at $684 and was stolen from the Empire plant in Mansfield, Jan. 31. Sheriff E. P. Long and A. A. Allen, personnel director of the Empire plant, were in Ashland yesterday to testify before the grand jury.

Also indicted by the jury was Guy Weiler of Albion, O., who is charged with the theft of a tractor plow May 1.

Junior Highs to Stage Dance For Students in Gym

A dance for all junior high school children will be held tomorrow night in the Johnny Appleseed junior high school gymnasium.

The dance is the first in a series of six to be held at the school during the summer months under sponsorship of the Appleseed Parent Teacher association.

Dancing will begin at 7:30 p. m. and continue until 10:30 with Eugene Ropp and his orchestra furnishing the music. The affair is open to junior high school students only. Students will be required to show their activity cards on purchasing their tickets.

Ten parents and two teachers will act as chaperons. Mrs. E. S. Wendell is chairman of the committee planning the affair, and Mrs. George Berg will be in charge of ticket sales. A floor show by Norma Young, William Nixon and John Berger, three Appleseed students will be presented during the evening.

Contributions Pour Into Red Cross War Chest

As the "greatest conflict in history" rages on and thousands of persons are made homeless with each mile that the enemy advances into France, contributions to the Red Cross war chest continued to accumulate today.

The Richland county chapter now has $9,000, with $3,000 still to be raised in order to complete the second quota. The first quota of $6,000 was raised early last week and has been sent to national headquarters for immediate use.

Volunteer contributions continue to come into the office both from persons who gave in the first quota and those who are contributing for the first time.

Two contributions came from former Mansfield residents, George Blymyer who now resides in Florida and Mrs. Nellie Lantz, living in California.

SUMMER CAMP DEADLINE SET

June 25 Last Date for Entry To Y. M. C. A. Camp at Brink Haven.

June 25 was set today as the deadline for accepting registrations to the Y. M. C. A. summer camp at Camp Nelson Dodd at Brink Haven, by Ralph B. Chapman, general secretary at the "Y."

Twenty-five boys have also signed to attend camp, leaving ten vacancies remaining before the Mansfield quota of 35 has been filled. According to Chapman, no registrations will be accepted after June 25, and boys planning to attend are urged to register as soon as possible.

Among the activities to be conducted at camp this year will be Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. life saving, a first aid course and rifle matches, Chapman also announced. First aid will be in charge of Donald Everhart, a senior medical student at Ohio State university.

The camp period for Mansfield boys opens July 2 and continues through July 16.

REFUGEE SHIP FLAGGED DOWN BY SUBMARINE

U. S. Liner Washington Halted Near Lisbon, Ordered to Lower Life Boats.

between the Washington and the submarine:

Submarine—"Stop ship. Ease to, ship. Torpedo ship."

Washington—"American ship."

Submarine—"Leave ship."

Washington—"American ship."

Submarine—"Ten minutes."

Washington — "American ship. American ship."

Submarine—(Moment silence.)

Washington — "American ship. American ship."

Submarine—"Thought you another ship. Please go on—go on."

According to the report of Capt. Harry Manning to the U. S. Lines, when the submarine gave the order "Leave ship" the passengers and crew—most of them American citizens and refugees fleeing the war zone—were ordered to the life boats. Some of them, the report said, actually were being lowered when the order came to "Please go on."

After this order, the vessel proceeded on its previously planned course. Soon, however, it sighted another submarine of unknown identity. The second undersea boat, however, did not molest the vessel.

After receiving the report of the near-tragedy from the U. S. Lines the state department instructed them to send a message to the captain of the Washington to be relayed to all of its passengers.

The department's message said that all belligerent governments have been notified that the Washington was on its present voyage and was operating without a convoy.

The vessel has been instructed by the U. S. Lines to continue on its previously announced course to Galway, Ireland, to complete the evacuation of some 500 Americans there according to schedule.

State department officials emphasized that before the Washington went to Europe all belligerent governments had been notified of its purpose—the rescue of refugees—and that it was sailing without cargo and without convoy.

NEWSPAPERS BEST MEDIUM

ELMIRA, N. Y. — (AP) — Newspaper advertising won by a wide margin over all other forms of advertising in a poll recently conducted among women shoppers of this city and vicinity.

It was conducted by the Retail Merchants division of the Chamber of Commerce. The question on advertising was one of 25 asked in a questionnaire distributed to 4,000 women shoppers.

Newspapers received 266 votes for first place and 49 for second place, while window displays as a means of attracting buyers, ranked second, "word of mouth" and the recommendations of friends, was third; and radio advertising came in fourth.

Although Texas is one of the big sheep producing states of the nation, it never has had a woolen mill. The first one to be established in the state will open this summer.

Isn't This Why You Are Constipated?
What do you eat for breakfast? Coffee, toast, maybe some eggs? What do you eat for lunch and dinner? White bread, meat, potatoes? It's little wonder you're constipated. You probably don't eat enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean the amount you eat. It's a kind of food that forms a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a movement. If this is your trouble, may we suggest a crunchy toasted cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran—for breakfast. All-Bran is a natural food, not a medicine—but it's particularly rich in "bulk." Being so, it can help you not only to get regular but to keep regular. Eat All-Bran regularly, and drink plenty of water. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

Paris Set In Flames By Nazi Air Raiders

Tanks Reported Approaching Outskirts Of French Capital as German Army Presses Grimly Toward Goal

but were reported making only slow progress at a huge toll of men and machines.

French military dispatches said that Allied counter-attacks were being made repeatedly along the front from the English channel to the Argonne forest as a means of slowing the German advance.

The French and British continued to fall back slowly, it was admitted, but the Germans were described as paying a tremendous toll for their offensive—into which Adolf Hitler had thrown what the French described as an "unbelievable" number of fresh units coincident with Italy's entry into the war.

German columns from Soissons continued to pound at the French lines on the Ourco from Ferte-Milion and Fere-en-Tardenois.

The German advance units appeared to be still about 25 to 30 miles from Paris, although information on military operations was indefinite at various points.

The Germans were putting their greatest pressure on the French left wing, trying to push the Allies back to the River Seine and across it by jabbing from Amiens to Rouen and Amiens to Verdun.

The general purpose of the drive in that sector was to close one end of a semi-circle around Paris and occupy the entire estuary of the river, swinging slowly toward the capital from the west.

German bombing planes pounded at the French rear lines, but the French aviation struck back strongly, shooting down 30 enemy craft and dropping 75 tons of high explosives on German communication lines.

French spokesmen said that the German lines were badly disorganized as a result of the air attacks and that one French chaser group under Captain Thibaudet shot down 12 German planes.

French sources said that the Germans still were throwing more and more power into the offensive in an effort to win quickly but that Gen. Maxime Weygand was not discouraged.

Preparation for defense of Paris went ahead steadily and telephonic communication inside the capital was interrupted by authorities in charge of the preparations.

The French high command had taken new secret measures in an attempt to stem the German advance.

What Weygand had called the battle of France had narrowed now, if only for the present, to the battle of Paris.

Key government departments had evacuated to Tours, ancient city outside which Charles Martel, in one of the decisive battles of the world, had defeated the Saracens in 732 and ended the westward advance of the Moors through Europe.

Premier Paul Reynaud, the "little giant," visited the front overnight to urge officers and men to fight to the death.

Berlin Claims Two Entire French Armies Destroyed

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN—Two entire French armies already have been destroyed in the new Nazi offensive, informed sources declared today as the Germans raced southward to slice France in half and join Italian forces.

Nazi sources estimated that the armies contained between four and five million men.

(This estimate, however, seemed extremely high, since the whole mobilized strength of the French nation was believed to be not much more than 5,000,000 men and France was understood to have only about 1,500,000 men in the great battle of France.)

A new "sack" is being thrown around Dieppe by a German thrust southward along the English channel, informed sources said, and Allied troops trapped in it will be treated as were the encircled armies in Flanders.

The exact location of the two armies reported destroyed was not given but the high command communique today said large sections of the Allies had been cut off and faced with destruction.

As the vast Nazi army of nearly two million men and machines of all kinds thundered southward, the high command asserted that "the enemy's power of resistance is visibly waning" because of "severe, bloody losses, the great number of prisoners and the capture of all kinds of material."

A German military spokesman said "no uniform French defense line any longer exists" on the northern front, and that Paris is being "immediately threatened."

The Allied retreat has been impeded, the high command said in a morning communique, by the German air force's successful destruction of a number of Marne and lower Oise bridges.

Fighting was going on along the whole front, the communique said, and was particularly fierce between Reims and the Argonne forest.

It added that German airmen had destroyed some locks at Le Havre, and had sunk a destroyer and damaged other ships, including two 10,000-ton transports.

Powerful wedges have been driven through the French lines at numerous points, completely severing connections between the individual French army corps, the spokesman declared.

The German air force was said to be lending extensive aid to the ground forces with a view to forcing a decision as quickly as possible.

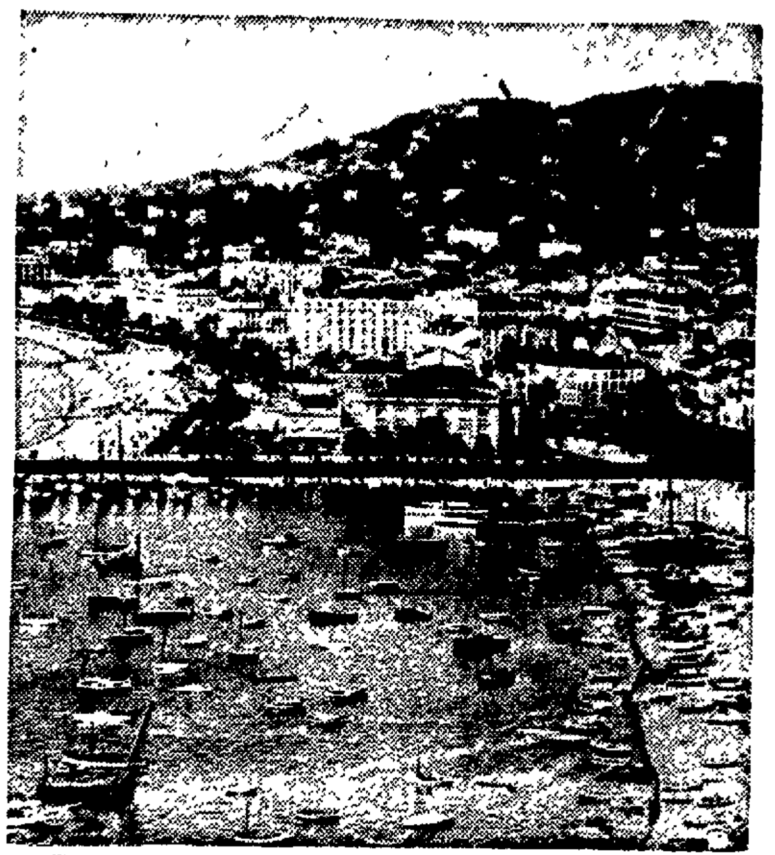
England also is being kept busy by the Nazi air force, the spokesman said, for "psychological reasons."

Jubilant over the success of the German drive toward Paris and Italy's entrance into the war, Nazi leaders boldly proclaimed that France's fate is sealed.

Spokesmen said that the Nazi battleflags were moving forward on the entire front extending from the English channel to the Meuse river.

They estimated that within five days the German drive has netted gains ranging from 56 to 62 miles along a front now given as 220 miles long.

French Mediterranean Cities Periled by Italy's Entry Into War



These two famous French cities are threatened with destruction as the result of the entry of Italy into the war on the side of Germany. At left, Cannes, famous French resort city on the Riviera. Picture shows the harbor and the principal section of the city, which lies on the shore of the Mediterranean. STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL TO BE AT JOHN'S PARK; PICK QUEEN

Continuing its annual custom, the Johns Park association will hold a strawberry festival at the park June 21, but with an important difference—this year there will be a festival queen.

The queen will be chosen by a group of young people who have been dancing twice weekly at the park pavilion, under an arrangement set up by the association.

Presumably, the queen will be chosen from the group that has been making use of the park facilities, and her duties at the festival will be outlined by the selecting group.

The queen will be chosen June 18. Members of the park assotion auxiliary have agreed to prepare a suitable costume for her to wear on the night of the festival—the 24th staged by the association, at which residents of the neighborhood get together for a social evening with ice cream and strawberries the piece de resistance.

Harry Bowman is president of the park association, and chairman in charge of the strawberry festival. He is being assisted by Ed Wyllie, a member of the association and an officer of the Mansfield Public Parks association.

Wyllie explained today that the association a few weeks ago had attempted to help fill the request of high school and junior high school students for a "dry night club"—a place where school boys and girls could congregate, dance and amuse themselves, but where no liquor was sold.

The association installed a coin music machine, and arranged to have members of the association on hand to act as chaperones on the nights the place was thrown open to the youngsters. The response, Wyllie said, has been remarkable.

war because of lack of resources. That's their own great danger.

We must wait to see what Mussolini's line of attack is before being able to estimate the damage.

It is true that the Italo-German hook-up may force the French to surrender. But it may not.

I should say that the greatest immediate danger to France is the powerful Italian air-force. If Mussolini should drive his bombers at the heart of France the position would be grave.

So far as invasion of Italian troops from the south is concerned, mother nature has done mighty well for France in the chain of Alps which run between the two countries.

France's big worry of the moment, of course, is the holding of that terrific German drive on Paris. The big danger spot, to my mind is the French left wing which is being rolled back from the coast along the Seine.

And what if the German army reaches the capital? Does this mean the end of French resistance?

Whether the capture of Paris would cause the capitulation of France would, in my mind, depend on whether the French army of the north was at the same time smashed and put out of commission. If Weygand can save his troops and equipment one would expect him to carry on in some other position.

MUSICIANS WIN

Four Mansfielders to Have Auditions In Cleveland.

Four Mansfield musicians and a male chorus from Ashland were winners last night in the Mansfield district auditions for the Cleveland Music Festival which will be held at the stadium in Cleveland Friday afternoon and evening. The event is sponsored by a Cleveland newspaper and women's clubs.

The Mansfield winners were Harriet Johnston, 132 Parkwood boulevard, who graduated last week from Senior high and who was winner in the contralto classification; Don Kirkpatrick, 140 Sturges avenue, winner in the bass solo group; Arthur Boyce, R. D. 1, baritone, and Harvey Todd, 120 Sherman avenue, clarinetist. Todd is a senior high school student. A male chorus from Ashland, directed by D. W. Johnston, was winner in that classification.

Judges for the audition were Edith Fletcher Jameson, J. Merton Holcombe, O. E. Fields. Winners will compete in the semi-finals on Friday afternoon when state winners compete with Cleveland talent, and the finals will be heard Friday night. Winners will receive cash awards, cups and medals.

DUCE SPEEDS WAR PLAN AS BATTLE OPENS

Rome Hears Italian Troops Already Engaged In Active Combat.

A communique regarding the first day's operations will be issued this afternoon, it was said. Meanwhile there was no indication as to where hostilities had broken out.

Diminutive King Victor Emmanuel was reported to be in the field with his troops as Italy's land, sea and air forces, at war with the Allies since midnight, received secret battle orders.

The king's proclamation appointing Premier Benito Mussolini "commander of all troops operating on all fronts," was dated "in the zone of operations," indicating that Victor Emmanuel personally was in the field.

Romans meanwhile awaited word that 3,000,000 men in Italy's legions had attacked on land, at sea and in the air.

Mussolini remained in Rome and at 10 a. m. presided over an extraordinary meeting of the council of ministers at Viminale palace. Outside, his people waited for news of the war.

There had been no hint of Mussolini's tactical plans but it had been rumored that the French Riviera, Corsica, Gibraltar and Djibouti capital of French Somaliland and chief railroad outlet for Italian Ethiopia, would be attacked at once.

The United States embassy officially took over the interests of the British and French governments soon after Italy's declaration of war became effective.

Inspired newspapers, hailing Italy's entry into the war, asserted that Italy would win and would satisfy all of Mussolini's aspirations on land and sea.

Importance was attached to well informed Italian quarters to the statement by Mussolini in his declaration of war speech yesterday that he did not intend to "drag" nations bordering on Italy on land or sea into the war. His reference—Switzerland, Jugoslavia, Greece, Turkey and Egypt—was taken as a warning to all that they must preserve the strictest neutrality or Italy would act.

Russia Holds Key to Turkish Move.

ANKARA, TURKEY—(AP)—Soviet Russia holds the key to Turkey's fulfillment of her mutual assistance treaty with Great Britain and France, it was acknowledged in informed quarters today.

The cabinet met throughout the afternoon and its stand was reported to depend on a response from Russia as to the Soviet attitude in case Turrkey should join the Allies in fighting Italy in the Mediterranean.

Ulus, the official newspaper, declared that Turkey possesses "the might and capacity to accomplish the national task" and was ready to fight any power infringing her rights but did not mention the pact with the Allies.

The war, it predicted, will be long, and as it develops, Turkey's "task and importance will be increased."

SOVIET QUIET

Most Russian Papers Refrain From Comment On Italy.

MOSCOW— (AP) —Most Soviet newspapers printed Italy's declaration of war without comment today.

But the army newspaper, Red Star, reviewing the Allies' position on the western front, said that "the best indication of weakening of the position of the alliance is the entrance of long-hesitating Italy into the war."

Mansfield News-Journal
AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER
MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, JUNE 11, 1940.

It may appear, after all, that there is something to fear besides fear.

Much trouble results from the difficulty encountered in trying to distinguish right from wrong.

It was said of a former conqueror that "he made a desolation and called it peace." It might be said of Hitler that he is making a junk-heap of Europe and calling it civilization.

Mussolini Joins Hitler Raiders

ENTRY of Fascist Italy into the European war, on the side of Nazi Germany, was at least free from the element of surprise which had marked some of the earlier moves in the conflict.

It has been known for many weeks that Mussolini was making ready for war and his axis agreement with Hitler had obviously been too enticing to encourage belief that better offers would be made by the Allies, with whom Italy was aligned in the first episode of the World war, which was recessed by the 1918 armistice.

Whatever friendly approaches were made to Mussolini in recent weeks by either spokesmen for the Allies or for President Roosevelt, in the hope of keeping Italy out of the war, were met by demands too great to be considered, including the ceding to Italy of a number of provinces on the French side of the Alps, the resort cities of Cannes and Nice, also Tunis and a number of French colonies in Africa. It was also demanded that the Maginot line be leveled.

Actual declaration of war against the Allies apparently awaited Mussolini's decision that German progress in France assured eventual subjugation of that nation and later interpretation will probably sustain the immediate charge that Italy's course stands high among the most cowardly acts in history.

With the Nazi forces continuing the drive toward Paris, and Italy's as yet untested strength bringing a new threat to southern France, the plight of the Allied cause on the continent is becoming more desperate every hour, with danger of invasion of the British Isles far from being the remote possibility that it appeared a month ago.

Recognizing that superior force is to finally be the determining factor in this war, and realizing that the greater force has thus far been evidenced by the German war machine, it becomes a matter of direct concern to the United States as to what would happen, in the event of Great Britain being forced to abandon her present seat of government and set up a new capital in Canada, as has already been seriously suggested.

Such a change would necessarily complicate the situation for this country, in its adherence to the Monroe Doctrine, and would increase the urgency for defensive measures and the building up of a military establishment on a larger scale than has yet been contemplated.

Meanwhile, whatever help the United States can give the Allies, by furnishing needed munitions and other supplies, must be regarded as justified on the grounds of self preservation, if no less selfish motive presents itself.

Enlistments Increasing

ENLISTMENTS in the U. S. army, the navy and naval reserve, the national guard, and other official and unofficial military organizations, are increasing. The foreign situation and the domestic flurry of armed preparedness naturally stimulate such movements.

It is not unlikely that if European conditions grow more alarming, we shall have a military draft law in this country, with men in large numbers enrolled for training. An Allied victory in France might delay this procedure, but would hardly prevent it. Americans, greatly shaken by recent world events, are obviously determined to make this country at least, the entire hemisphere if possible, secure from invasion.

Any general enlistment would naturally absorb some of the unemployment in this country. Combined with the rising industrial production and employment, for purposes of rearmament and aid to the Allies, it might even bring employment back to normal in another year or two.

Hurry Up and Enjoy June!

WITH June already more than one-third gone, it's high time to be thinking about getting the greatest possible amount of enjoyment out of the remaining nineteen days, or it'll be the first of July before you can say Jack Robinson.

In Ohio, at least, June is probably looked forward to with greater pleasurable anticipation by more people than any other month in the year, because of its promise of enlarged freedom, outdoor recreation, and opportunities for enjoyment of the beauties of garden flowers and the abundant foliage of deciduous trees and shrubbery.

At this particular time, when it is difficult to shake off a troubled feeling and when the European war situation is constantly in the background of thoughts, it is especially important to occasionally break away from somber things and find mental and physical relaxation which will make it possible to "carry on", regardless of what may lie ahead.

Don't miss the opportunities that June offers. Get out of doors as much as possible. Attend a picnic. Take a stroll through the woods. Don't miss seeing several attractive flower gardens. Go fishing. Play some golf. Enjoy June —while you can.

Loyal In Time of Trouble

MAHATMA GANDHI, leader of 300,000,000 Hindus, refuses to please radical followers by launching a "civil disobedience campaign" against Britain. He will not do this, he says, while Britain is fighting for its life in Europe.

This may be a bigger factor in the great war than most Americans realize. The Nazis have been doing all they can to stir up trouble in India, and a revolt there could become very troublesome. The "Mahatma's" political and moral power are great. His loyalty might be a crucial factor in saving European democracy.

The modesty of this gentle autocrat is incredible. In a recent speech to his followers, he said, "I am supposed to be your general, but my only sanction is the love and affection in which you hold me. I go on making my experiments, and also go on declaring my mistakes whenever I discover them. I am an erring mortal like you. I have never even in my dreams thought that I was a Mahatma (great soul) and that others were little souls. We are all equal before our Maker—Hindus, Moslems, Parsees, Christians, worshippers of one God. Why then do we fight among ourselves?"

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

NEW YORK—The vigilance of the strong arm squad at the Fair during the first 30 days of the season has, to say the very least, been unremitting, and it is due to this no doubt that we have run into only one man, a hardware dealer from Pittsburgh, who has had his pockets picked. This is an unusual record, and it speaks well for the future police commissioners who are roaming the amusement boulevards and the intellectual by-ways of the Fair.

This dealer was a man named Horace H. Morgan and he lost a wallet that contained $75 in cash, plus a railroad ticket and various identification and credit cards.

"The man who worked on me," Mr. Morgan explained cheerfully, "must have been a wonder, because I didn't feel a thing. It was that painless. I was just standing there, watching the doves pluck the clothes off Miss Rosita Royce. And after the doves had earned their encore I started to turn away. It was then I noticed how light my coat felt, because with my wallet in the inside of my coat, there is a bulge there and it is usually tight. There was no bulge, nor was there any wallet. I still don't know how it happened."

WE DIDN'T say as much to Mr. Morgan, but it is our worldly opinion that he was anesthesized by the sight of Miss Royce and her doves. The pickpocket probably could have removed his collar and shoes just as successfully. We say this on the evidence of Mr. Morgan's own spoken words, for it is obvious to anyone who is familiar with the Fair that Mr. Morgan got his girls wrong. Or maybe it was his birds. Miss Royce, unlike Eve who was clothed only in nudity, is clothed in cooing doves. They clutter around her and that is all. There is another trained foul, and a smart old fowl he is, known far and wide as the sarong-snatching parrot of Miss Yvette Dare, another strip-tease cutie. Miss Dare's act differs from Miss Royce's in that she is clad only in a sarong. At a critical moment in her act the parrot plucks off the sarong.

We believe Mr. Morgan is perfectly sincere in giving his version of the theft of his wallet but we still claim that under trick lights in the noisy, heady atmosphere of a world's fair during these topsy-turvy days it is perfectly possible and excusable for a man, especially if he is standing up close, to confuse a dove with a parrot. It is quite likely even that feathers got in his eyes, and when that happens, who among us can tell a sarong from a flock of doves flying in brassiere formation?

PERSONALLY, we feel that Mr. Morgan is fortunate and that he got more out of his experiences with the bird girls than the pickpockets got out of his wallet. He has a story to tell and a solid foundation for his memories. Furthermore, he took it standing up. He was unnettled, even cheerful, relating the episode, and when a man can be fleeced in this fashion and bear no grudge against his fellow man he is made of the right stuff.

Note: For those who may wish to make a point of dropping in on this parrot who includes Miss Yvette Dare in his act, she is in 52nd street at the well known establishment of Leon & Eddie's. Birds, no less than at the Fair, do well in 52nd street. The show at Leon & Eddie's is even titled the "Pretty Polly Revue," and when pretty pollies are reviewed anywhere, Eddie will revue them.

Air Experts Not In Agreement

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

SPEAKERS at the recent Washington banquet of the National Aviation Forum were not overly in agreement.

Major Al Williams, former naval air expert, was extremely critical of President Roosevelt's air policy, which, he says, leaves the country's aviation at a dangerously low ebb in the present world emergency. Postmaster General James A. Farley took the attitude that the administration has done all that reasonably could have been expected of it.

Williams also urged the creation of an independent aeronautical bureau—virtually a cabinet department.

Army and navy men generally object to an independent status for military and naval aviation. They are favorable to the promotion of flying by land and sea forces, but are of the opinion that it should be done under the auspices of the big departments. Major Williams, an ex-naval flyer, is an exception, but it will be noticed that he's an "ex." He's an "ace," also.

Mayor Fiorella H. LaGuardia of New York is an independent of his own kind.

The Little Flower.

The "Little Flower" is as good an aviator as anyone and emphatically practical. He served with the American air force on the Italian front during the period of Uncle Sam's participation in the last World war. From all accounts he shot down as many enemy planes as anybody else. However, his story is that he never went up in his crate of that period without deep misgivings. "I don't think I'm much of a hero," he once told me.

I've seen plenty of his comrades in arms who tell quite a different story. La Guardia disagrees with Williams in this respect:

Williams' reasoning is that a separate air arm is needed in order to build up its efficiency, which he argues that the army and navy departments have failed to do.

La Guardia doesn't dispute that aviation needs to be built up, but he contends that it is in such bad shape already that it can't be put in satisfactory operation in time to meet needs of today.

There was a considerable tendency to blame politics for the service's backwardness.

What's the Use?

Some critics took the view that even our interior cities are open to attack by planes involving much damage if nothing worse.

Others concurred with Colonel Lindbergh that the plane is of no appreciable danger to our coast, and certainly not to anywhere a few miles back of it.

Another pessimistic utterance is to the effect that even though the government builds up an overwhelmingly preponderent force of planes, these machines will be at least semi-obsolete in the course of a year or two.

So what's the use, say the apostles of gloom, in arming aerially up to the hilt only to have the whole armada out of date in short order?

The consensus at the National Forum was to the effect that American planes are equal, at their best, to any in the world. Also it is held that, though our production may not be equal in volume to, say, Germany's, we could reach the German level in pretty short order.

Health And Diet

Varied Opinions About Tobacco.

—By DR. CLENDENING

THERE is no question that tobacco is a drug. And there is no question that as a habit its use is very common.

Those being undeniable facts, they arouse in different persons, different reactions. Once when I wrote of some experiments made on the effect of tobacco on athletes' "wind," I received a letter from a mid-west college instructor saying he would no longer allow my writings to be read in his classrooms, as they heretofore had been, and that he was convinced from a study of his students, that the use of cigarets caused low grades of scholarship.

I feel that, intellectually, such a man shows that he does not know the nature of evidence. But he reveals one attitude of mind towards tobacco — the relentless reformer.

It's pretty hard to figure out, as G. K. Chesterton, the great English essayist, said, where there is any "moral issue" involved in smoking or not smoking at all. There is, in the use of alcohol and, of course, the narcotics. But not tobacco. And I think we ought to get that straightened out to begin with.

Then there is a large group of people who smoke and who are continuously worrying about whether it really does them any harm or not.

Started as Healer.

And there is a group which smokes and is convinced it does harm without any very good evidence. But these enjoy it enough so they go on smoking anyway.

Then there is the vast majority who smoke and don't think very much about it one way or the other.

Curiously, in view of its present bad repute, it was at first used for its great healing powers. Jean Nicot, whose name has been eponymized in "nicotine," sent seeds of the tobacco to Catherine de Medici that they might be cultivated for their medicinal properties. "Herba panacea" it was called and William Lilly refers to "our holy herb nicotain."

The opponents of tobacco have always used as their impregnable rock of debate, the fact that nicotine is a poison. There is enough nicotine in an ordinary cigar to kill two stout adult men. Probably more, since from 60 to 120 milligrams will kill a man, depending on age and condition.

Every fraternity house and, I presume every sorority house in the United States, knows that a very small amount of the goo in the stem of a pipe, placed on its tongue will kill a cat in about four minutes. Eight drops given to a horse will kill it in eight minutes.

Timely Editorial

For Alien Registration.

The plans for alien registration in this country are undertaken wisely. There are probably 3,500,000 unnaturalized foreigners in the United States. This does not mean that this large group is under suspicion or that any law abiding alien resident in this country has anything to fear from the law. The experiences of other countries with subversive forces teach the necessity of precautions. The rights and liberties of the humblest visitors to this land will be respected in this work directed by Francis Biddle, solicitor general, who served as law clerk for the great liberal, Justice Holmes.

By this registration, the right-minded aliens will receive a protection they will appreciate. The dangerous ones will have their roamings stopped.—Toledo Blade.

Home Builders

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

LAST FALL I noticed four stakes driven in the center of a plot of land high on a hillside along the concrete road. Farther west a strip of young timber stood, with grapevines spread and intertwined over, under, around and through. Piles of stone had been accumulated for some time. Hazel bushes beside them were twisted with bittersweet.

In December I watched two men with a team plow about these stakes and scoop the dirt away. The foundation of a new home was started. The following day the excavation was completed. Two weeks passed. One morning a truck drove up with a load of concrete blocks. That evening as I passed two men were working on a wall. It was cold and they wore overcoats and gloves. A fire, built in an old drum, furnished steaming water.

The next week a pile of clean bright finished lumber was on the northern side and a lone carpenter placed heavy joists upon the wall. For two months, whenever the weather permitted, he worked until the three-room house was roofed and sided. I felt great satisfaction when I saw smoke roll from the new-made chimney for the first time, and heard the builder use his hammer and saw in comfort. A single plank was laid across the raw, sticky clay to the front door sill and I saw a young woman walk cautiously up the plank into the house.

The first of April they had moved, even though it was not finished; for I saw curtains at the windows and at evening a light shone out upon the highway. Now it was a home.

The garden was plowed the first week of May. I saw the mother and a boy of six or seven planting seeds in the freshly worked soil, while from the branch of a leaning white oak hung the swinging crib of a baby, rocked by the warm south wind.

I stopped and greeted them. "Where did you move from?" I asked.

"We came from the city," she told me. "My husband's health hasn't been so good. We'll build on more rooms later. We thought of course we'd get lonely out here in the country, but somehow after the first week, we forgot all that. The boy, here, used to cry to go to shows, but his own garden and the puppy his daddy got him have changed all that. We like the quiet, and when evening comes we're so tired that to rest is more pleasure than to go away. We're happy here."

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Last week The Washington Merry-Go-Round revealed how 1,800,000 Enfield rifles manufactured for the British in 1918 could not be sold to the Allies because of a war department order of March 14, 1940, preventing the sale of surplus arms to any agent who might possibly resell them to the Allies.

The order was issued at a time when President Roosevelt had announced a vigorous policy of giving the Allies every possible aid and was definitely in conflict with that policy. Just how the order happened to be issued still remains a mystery.

However, immediately after publication of the Merry-Go-Round story, the order was rescinded and the circumstances surrounding the change are not a mystery. They revealed that some officials in the war department are too co-operative in carrying out the Roosevelt policy of giving material help to the Allies.

What happened was this: When Roosevelt heard that the Army had prohibited sales to agents suspected of reselling to the Allies, he told Secretary Morgenthau to look into the matter, and if legal, to have the order changed.

Morgenthau, who is in charge of selling goods to the Allies, asked his lawyers to investigate, and they informed him that under international law the United States government could not sell arms direct to a belligerent; but there was no reason whatsoever why it should not sell to a third party.

Roosevelt's Orders.

MORGENTHAU then called in General George Marshall, chief of staff, and told him the president's wishes. He made it very clear that the March 14 order must be changed and immediately.

But several days went by and nothing happened. The war department order was not changed. Meanwhile the Allies were in desperate need of more material. They lost vast stores of guns and ammunition in Belgium. They were anxious to buy even outmoded equipment which the United States had manufactured for the World war.

Finally one of the Allied agents flew to Morgenthau's home in New York, where he was spending the week-end, and entered a plea for prompt action.

Next day Morgenthau returned to Washington and immediately called a conference of war department chiefs, plus Francis Biddle, acting attorney general. Biddle arrived at the conference in cutaway coat and pin-striped trousers straight from arguing a case before the Supreme Court.

"Gentlemen," said Secretary Morgenthau, "the president has directed that if there is sound legal basis for changing this order, it be changed, and changed immediately."

From then on things began to happen. The justice department legal experts jumped into the picture and Francis Biddle worked until midnight drafting an opinion knocking out the war department's order. The day was hot. When he finished at 12:20 a. m. his stiff shirt was wilted, his high formal collar was a moist rag.

"No Crumbs."

NEXT DAY Major General Allen W. Gullion, the army's able judge advocate general, was asked whether he would accept the ruling of the attorney general.

"He is my superior officer," Gullion replied. "I never question his acts."

Next day, also, Secretary Woodring returned from Kansas and came over to the treasury department to see what the shooting was all about.

He seemed much concerned, said he had no idea that his order of March 14 would have a serious effect upon the Allies. He had merely wanted to keep agents who were not properly credited at the state department from bothering his army officers.

He did not mention the fact that for about two weeks the Allies had been moving heaven and earth with his own officers to secure U. S. surplus weapons.

Later that day Secretary Morgenthau warned Arthur Purvis, head of the Allied purchasing mission: "You'd better order whatever you want right away. Tomorrow we may sell all this stuff to Venezuela."

Late that night Purvis telephoned to say: "Mr. Secretary, there isn't a crumb left for Venezuela."

Note — The Allies purchased 500,000 Enfield rifles, 450 British 75-millimeter field artillery guns, 25,000 Browning machine-guns, 5,000 Stokes trench mortars. Unsold were 2,180 French 75 because of future need if the U. S. army is enlarged.

CIO Pow-Wow.

THANKS to the absence, because of illness, of Sidney Hillman, leader of the anti-left-wingers, the CIO executive committee deliberations went off peacefully. But while the smoldering blow-up did not occur, there was a distinct undercurrent of tension.

The bid trade-union chiefs, Phil Murray of the Steel Workers, R. J. Thomas of the Auto Workers, and Tom Burns of the Rubber Workers, were on the alert to squelch any left-wing "party line" tactics. The left-wingers, representing chiefly the small unions, were clearly restive but apparently afraid to start anything. When they did, they were sat on promptly.

In two squabbles regarding jurisdiction over small unions, the left-wingers were curtly ordered to keep hands off. Then came the drafting of a resolution to approve the administration's national defense program and denounce fifth column activities.

John L. Lewis appointed Murray, Thomas and Lee Pressman, CIO general counsel, to write this resolution. When the group met, Murray pulled out an already prepared draft. Pressman, a militant left-winger, strenuously objected.

He insisted that it be shown to Lewis before being submitted to the conference. But if Pressman expected support from John L., he was disappointed. After a cursory glance at the resolution, Lewis nodded approval and handed it back.

* * *

Unnamed Aggressors.

LATER, however, when Burns, during the floor discussion, urged that the resolution include a denunciation of the "aggressor powers", Lewis blocked the move.

"I think it's time we speak out and name names," Burns demanded. "We ought to go on record as denouncing Germany, Italy, Japan and Russia as aggressors and make no bones about it."

Without getting up from his chair, Lewis rumbled, "I'm against that. If we're going to start naming aggressors we'll have to take in a great deal of territory and name a lot of names." The left-wingers enthusiastically applauded.

Note—The drive within the CIO to eliminate left-wingers from the leadership is rapidly gaining momentum. When a group of them slipped a resolution through the Indiana executive board condemning the European war as "imperialistic" and Roosevelt as trying to involve the U. S., the aroused trade-union forces repudiated the declaration and Alice Smith, left-wing leader, was fired as secretary of the regional Auto Workers office. Leader of the opposition against the group was Jim Robb, coal miner and Lewis' personal representative in Indiana.

BATTERY D TO TAKE PART IN U. S. WAR GAMES

80 Officers and Men From Mansfield to Participate In Wisconsin Maneuvers.

Battery D, Mansfield unit of the Ohio National guard, along with National guard units throughout the country, is already making plans to participate in large-scale second army maneuvers to be held in the northern Wisconsin woods, near Sparta, in August.

According to Capt. R. J. Nichols about 80 officers and men and full equipment from Battery D will participate in the three weeks maneuvers.

The maneuvers open Aug 11 and continue until Aug 31. Battery D has been ordered to leave for Wisconsin at 5:30 a. m., Aug. 11, and proceed to Plymouth, Ind. where it will be quartered the first night. It is planned to camp three nights along the proposed route, according to Nichols.

The local group will make the trip in eight trucks, two station wagons and a trailer, pulling all guns behind the trucks.

Making the trip in addition to Nichols and guardsmen will be Harry Snyder, first Lieut.; Albert Bell and Raymond Uhlich, second Lieuts.; Capt. Coleman E. Todd, executive officer, second battalion; Robert Springer and Dale Uhlich, first Lieuts. on the second battalion staff; Capt. H. R. Crichfield of the service battery, and Capt. Grover E. Swoyer, regimental chaplain.

Allotments of camp areas for Ohio National guard troops during the maneuvers were announced from headquarters of Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, commanding general of the second army, in Chicago yesterday.

Headquarters of the 37th Ohio Division, of which Mansfield guardsmen will be a part, under Major Simon P. Dunkle, Columbus, will be at Warrens, a small town, 20 miles northeast of Sparta.

DISEASE CASES SHOW DECREASE

78 Cases of Contagion In City During May; Drop of 25 Over April.

Communicable diseases in Mansfield showed a 30 per cent decrease during May, Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner told the board of health at a meeting yesterday afternoon.

He said a total of 78 cases of contagious disease were reported to the health department last month as compared to 103 in April.

He said greatest decrease was shown in scarlet fever with only eight cases reported in May against 20 the month previous. Eighteen cases of chickenpox were recorded as compared to 35 in April.

In addition, there were 33 cases of whooping cough, nine cases of venereal disease, eight of pneumonia, three of tuberculosis, two of mumps and one of measles.

16 SCIENTISTS
Reveal Great Discovery About
CONSTIPATION
Tests at World-Famous Hospital Show How To Help Nature Produce Her Own Gentle, Complete "Daily" Bowel Action!

NEW YORK: Constipation sufferers rejoice! For now violent cathartics and laxatives and harsh "roughage" products, many of which are habit forming and are often irritating to bowel lining—can be avoided.

You can now actually help Nature produce her own gentle, complete "daily" bowel movements—thanks to the patient study of 16 Scientists.

You see if waste matter in the colon isn't kept moist it becomes hard, dry, caked and results in constipation. These scientists discovered that a "little daily dose" of Kruschen actually keeps this waste matter moist, soft and easy to expel. Also acts as a mild antacid and kidney diuretic.

There is no nausea, no griping, no violence with Kruschen. Hospital tests report: "Kruschen can be taken for years without having to increase the dose." Inexpensive!! Only a trifle for a jar that lasts weeks. Over 245,000,000 jars of Kruschen have been sold throughout the world. Kruschen must do the work!

CHAPTER XXXIII

But there was no joy in Rod's voice. "I have a job. I think it's a good one—beginning Monday a week. That will give me time to go home to see mother. I've an apartment, too, and I'm going to get my things out of storage." His lashes flickered. "I'm not broke, Brooke. I meant to tell you this last week. Irene put some money in my name when we were married. She insists that I keep it, knowing I've got to start all over again."

Tony had spoken of his mother's generosity. . . . If Julian came didn't find her. . . .

"That's fine, Rod."

"I would have called you this week but I've been so darned busy."

Your excuses don't matter any more, Rod. I don't believe I'll ever have to make any excuses for Julian. . . .

"Who is it tonight, Brooke? Do you mind?"

"It's Julian Carlton."

Rod flushed. "Oh!" Then, looking relieved, his flush fading, smiling a half-smile, "I'm not worried about him. He's too well known as the love 'em-and-leave-'em type."

"Is he?" quietly. A year ago she would have believed him.

He nodded. Then, "Brooke, I . . ." The warmth of his eyes that had once shut out everything else except him came to them. "When this is all over, we can be married and forget it forever, I hope."

* * *

He had dismissed Julian and he had taken for granted that she would marry him. Brooke looked at him with amused dismay, her dark brows lifted. He was pleased with himself again. He had a job and an apartment and a faithful girl and money from a generous first wife. She could have laughed at his conceit, his blindness, his stupidity. . . .

Her eyes flew to the clock. It was three minutes within the time Julian had said he would come for her.

"I can't talk any more, Rod. I'm going to Barney's tonight. He has a place in Connecticut now. Shall I tell him anything?"

"That won't be necessary. He'll read it in the papers next week."

Two minutes. . . .

She arose and walked with him, entering the lobby just as Julian, his fairness, his sunburn accentuated by evening clothes, stepped from the revolving door.

She knew what he thought as surely as if he had said, "I suppose you've been seeing Rod frequently." She saw disappointment in the alert blue eyes, the tightness of his jaw, and swift anger replacing disappointment.

People in the lobby who were waiting for the rain to stop saw the meeting of two tall young men, one in evening clothes, one in street clothes, and a tall girl beautifully dressed in white with dark hair centerparted.

They heard the young man in evening clothes, slightly taller than the other, say, "Hello, Rod. How are you?"

"Hello, Julian. I'm fine, thank you."

They shook hands. The girl stood apart, looking from one to the other with thoughtful eyes.

Rod said, "You've quite a drive ahead. I don't want to keep you." Turning to the girl, he smiled. "I'll call you, Brooke."

"Good night, Rod."

"Good night, Julian."

When he had gone, Julian said, "I'll get the car and come back for you, Brooke."

With sick shame she looked up at him. Remote and cool, he looked back, heightening the barrier between them. The evening was spoiled when it had scarcely begun.

She waited, looking out at the rain dancing on the wet street and people hurrying. The sound of Julian's horn had become familiar during their drive north together, and when she heard it she picked up her frock a little and went out.

People waiting in the lobby looked as if they envied her. . . .

In a tangle of traffic Julian said, "It's too bad it's a night like this. We'll have to be indoors."

"Perhaps it's only local."

She felt leaden. How to break his icy indifference? She glanced at him quickly and glanced away again, knowing that now they were together again, her love would demand not only his presence but expression. Yet she was stirred and happy and glad that the drive was a long one.

"When it was terribly hot here," she said, "I thought of you in Maine. In fact, in my thoughts you were always on the beach, never doing anything else."

His chuckle cheered her. "When at that particular moment I was probably playing tennis." Then guardedly he said, "I'll be the second person to tell you that you are looking particularly lovely tonight."

"Thank you." She dragged the words from her. "Irene is going to Reno this week. Rod is here alone."

"I can't resist saying that—I told you so. I told you in February."

"In February nothing helped me, Julian."

After a time when they were riding on an open country road he said, "I hope you'll be very happy, Brooke. In spite of what you think, it is not an unusual case."

"But you don't know all the details."

"And I'm no longer curious to know them."

"You don't understand. . . ." She could have wept.

He said severely, "I understand that at the end of six weeks you and Rod Westover will be married. What I think doesn't matter. My failure to understand doesn't matter either. Now let's talk about something else."

There were tears in her voice. "No, Julian. Let's not talk at all."

Nor could she think while they rode in silence. Each thought was washed away before it was half formed. He did not understand and she could not blurt out to the impregnable barrier, "I'm in love with you, Julian. Let me tell you!.. And so she sat quietly, her heart sick, for how many miles she neither knew nor cared until the lights of Barney's house came into view.

When Julian opened the car door, their eyes met briefly and he smiled.

"I was boorish. Forgive me. The grass is wet. And before Barney appears and again commands me to pick you up and carry you in. . . ."

She gave herself up to him.

The big house was crowded with guests. Barney, grinning up at a blond who towered over him, moved away when he saw Julian and Brooke. In the throng Brooke saw Wilson Stone and Denny, his wife.

Barney boomed, "Hello!" and pumped Julian's hand, then Brooke's. "Take your coat upstairs, Brooke."

She left them, hearing Barney ask Julian if he had done any fishing in Maine.

BUILD SEWER IN LINCOLN HEIGHTS

Commissioners Approve Project; Order Cost Estimates.

County commissioners yesterday approved construction of a storm sewer on Indiana avenue in Lincoln Heights and requested County Engineer Howard Sword to prepare a survey of the project and draw up an estimate of the cost.

The action was taken after a hearing on the proposed improvement failed to bring any protests.

The sewer will be approximately 1,000 feet long. Major part of the cost will be assessed against property owners along the street.

Dry air consists of 78 per cent nitrogen, 21 per cent oxygen and 1 per cent other gases.

Lamb Grill Offers New Idea

By BETSY NEWMAN

PORCH MEALS are a thing to think of when the weather is warm and pleasant. Try a lamb grill, which is easily and quickly prepared. Serve on your grill plates (those with partitions, you know, if you have 'em) hot off the grill.

Today's Menu.

Loin Lamb Chop Grill
New Potatoes
Tossed Green Salad Hot Muffins
Fresh Strawberries Coffee

Loin Lamb Chop Grill.

4 lamb chops
8 link sausages
2 cups cooked peas
4 bananas
4 pineapple spears
4 bacon slices

Have loin chops cut from ¾ to 1 inch thick Thoroughly preheat broiler, put peas in bottom of broiler pan, and chops on rack and broil When chops are brown on one side, turn and add to grill link sausages and bananas that have been split in half lengthwise, a pineapple spear inserted in each and a slice of bacon wrapped over outside. Turn sausages and banana rolls once so that they will be evenly cooked.

By the time the chops are browned on the second side the bacon should be cooked, the sausages done (be sure of this latter, as pork should always be thoroughly cooked), and peas heated through It will take 10 to 12 minutes. Cook potatoes in boiling salted water, drain, dip in melted butter and put on grill for browning.

Quick Muffins.

2 cups flour
2 tablespoons butter
3 eggs
2 teaspoons baking powder
Milk.

Sift flour with baking powder and 1 or 2 tablespoons sugar if you like them sweet, rub or cut butter through mixture thoroughly, then add milk, a little at a time until you have a batter a little thicker than for pancakes. Beat in beaten eggs the last thing and bake in hot muffin rings or tins

DRESSING FOR MEAT.

French dressing in a new role—use it for brushing meats and vegetables when they are broiled The dressing gives extra flavor and helps out with the browning.

Welcome Member Into Missionary Society at Meet

Mrs. James LeMunyon was welcomed as a new member of the Florence Welty Missionary society last evening during a meeting at the home of Mrs. John Linsenmayer, 485 Woodward avenue. Miss Betty Axtell and Mrs. George Klippel, jr., were the guests in attendance.

A covered-dish dinner was served, followed by a program in charge of Mrs. Rozella Lorentz She discussed "Women and the Way In China." When the business was in session the hostess was given a life membership in the society. A missionary donation was made by the group at this time.

The Misses Reba Robinson and Marie Hoover were chosen as delegates to the Lakeside Summer Mission school. The place of the next meeting, July 8, will be announced in the near future.

Mrs. Porterfield Has Young Student Program

At 4 o'clock this afternoon Marie Marks Porterfield presented a group of her younger piano pupils in recital. The recital was held at the Women's Club.

Those taking part were Fred Pryor Gwendolyn Baker, Katherine Beatty, Robert Beatty, Orlo Smith, Margaret Ann Lindley, Charles Jones, Louis Burns, Janey Bushnell, Betty Lou Miller, Peggy Iden, Sue Belle Biddle, Doris Alverson and Jim Draffan.

Sleep Habits Important

THE VERY young baby ought to sleep practically all the time when not being fed or bathed; at two or three months, nineteen to twenty hours; at six months he should sleep about twelve hours at night with only one regular interruption at night for feeding. He should also have, both morning and afternoon, a nap of about two hours each period These maps which may grow shorter, should continue at the age of a year, with a twelve-hour period at night.

Later, the morning nap may grow shorter and shorter when it finally will be abandoned at the age of two or so. Thereafter, until school interrupts, the afternoon nap is every essential

Nothing so essential to good sleep habits as strict regularity. A variation of fifteen minutes may entirely upset them A separate bed is important. There should be enough cotton pads and blankets so these articles need never be left wet after the baby's clothing has been changed.

The temperature of the sleeping room should not be over 60 degrees, but well ventilated without draughts. The windows should be open all night, preferably with a canvas screen. Though there should be no disturbing noises, the infant will easily adapt himself to the usual home noises.

After several weeks, sleep out-of-doors may be desirable. Some recommend that the baby should not be out in temperature much below 40 degrees. In a crowded city, a well ventilated room may be better. If you have followed such a program strictly and your baby does not go to sleep readily, or sleeps restlessly, consult your physician.

Be sure you do not allow yourself to train your baby to command you to take him up, to take him into bed with you, to lie down with him or beside him, to feed him off schedule, and the like. Most sleep problems in young children grow out of the human frailties of their parents—easy to say, hard to correct in ourselves and just as hard for others whom we advise, to correct. Always was, always will be. Good luck.

BATHS BOOST SPIRITS

Cleanliness and civilization go hand in hand but even primitive peoples link bathing very closely with their religious ceremonies. Being clean is such a pleasant feeling it brings spiritual satisfaction as well as physical delight.

Some women complain about the size of their wash. But logically a big wash should be a cause for boasting rather than complaint because it is a sign of fastidiousness. The desire for clean clothes and household linens is one of the best indications of a highly developed sense of comfort and self-respect.
